Truckers Forced To Lift Stall

Lower Speed Limit, 74¢ Fuel Protested

. . . Threats, Tow Trucks Used

By The Associated Press

Officials in Ohio and Pennsylvania used the threat of arrest and National Guard action Wednesday to force truckers protesting high fuel prices and low speed limits to lift highway blockades.

In Ohio, riot-clad police and tow trucks manned by National Guard crews moved in Wednesday night to arrest drivers and move vehicles if necessary after officials ordered secondary roads cleared by 9 p.m.

About 50 drivers peacefully abandoned a blockade at the intersection of Ohio highways 16 and 161 as about 50 police and two tow trucks approached soon after the 9 p.m. deadline.

The site of the blockade was seven miles north of Interstate 70 and 25 miles east of Columbus.

The clearance order applied to 10 feeder highways within a 15-mile area along Interstate 70, which runs through the middle of Ohio between West Virginia and Indiana. A total of about 300 truckers stalled traffic along the auxiliary roads.

The order did not apply to I-70 or the Ohio Turnpike, where thousands of trucks stalled traffic all day Wednesday. A spokesman for Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan said it was impractical to move so many trucks.

Truckers on I-70 remained adamant. One, Walter Barclay of Omaha, Neb., said: "They're gonna have to take me to jail to get me to move."

In Pennsylvania truckers vowed to call off traffic-stopping protests hours after Gov. Milton Shapp threatened to use the National Guard to keep roadways clear.

In New Jersey, Gov. William Cahill put the guard on alert to bring out heavy duty tow trucks if needed, adding: "We cannot and will not tolerate the deliberate obstruction of traffic which threatens the public safety, welfare and convenience."

Earlier Wednesday, some 1,800 trucks tied up rush hour traffic when they cut off entrances to the Delaware Memorial bridge for seven hours.

The drivers told Shapp they were charged up to 74 cents a gallon for diesel fuel normally costing about 36 cents. They also said they could get better gas mileage at 60 miles per hour than 55.

Shapp promised to study their complaints.

Blockades caused massive traffic jams Tuesday night and early Wednesday and Shapp had threatened to use the National Guard to clear roadways.

Gov. William T. Cahill of New Jersey put the guard on alert to bring out heavy-duty tow trucks if needed, adding: "We cannot and will not tolerate the deliberate obstruction of traffic which threatens the public safety, welfare and convenience."

The governors' action followed a massive snarl Wednesday morning at the Delaware Memorial Bridge. The blockade affected drivers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

In the South, about 20 trucks briefly blocked Interstate 40 midway between Little Rock, Ark., and Memphis, Tenn.

Three truckers were arrested on traffic charges after refusing to comply with police requests to move. The other truckers dispersed.

The Ohio truckers blocked several places on the turnpike in the predawn hours, started moving again, then stopped for another protest.

Another group of about 40 truckers — including some who participated in Tuesday's blockades in West Virginia and Ohio — stopped up Interstate 70, just east of Columbus.

Three of the drivers — Walter Barclay of Omaha, Neb.; David Trodglen of Owensboro, Ky.; and Hugh McCabe of Buckeye Lake, Ohio — conferred with Gilligan's chief of staff, Jack E. Hansan.

Hansan said that the drivers complained of harassment by law officers, in Ohio, unfair practices by service stations and varying fuel prices as well as about general speed limits and prices.

"We don't want hearsay. We want some definite word from Washington," said Barclay who claimed to represent 300 to 400 drivers.

Indiana State Police said the 100 truckers blocking the toll road presented a list of demands that included a fuel price maximum of 35.9 cents per gallon and a national speed limit of 65 m.p.h. on federal highways.

At the White House, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren was asked whether the President approves of the stoppages.

"It's not that simple a situation," Warren said, and added that Nixon told a Wednesday morning Cabinet meeting that there was an urgent need "to meet problems of inequity."

The Cost of Living Council in Washington said it was investigating complaints that owners of some truck stops were illegally overcharging for the fuel used by drivers of the giant rigs.

There was no immediate indication that the blockades were part of a nationwide, concerted effort, although there have been calls for a total shutdown in the middle of this month.

The Teamsters Union, which represents 400,000 drivers, and the American Trucking Association, an industry group, have said they are not involved.

Corps Says $1.8 Million . . .

Flood Damage Estimates Differ

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Crete — A U.S. Corps of Engineers report presented here Wednesday on recent flood damages in Beatrice showed a sharp discrepancy from figures compiled by state agencies.

The comparison came to light at a joint session of the Upper and Lower Big Blue River Natural Resource Districts featuring a review of the Oct. 11-12 flood. Approximately 40 district directors and state agency officials attended the all-day meeting.

David Day, a Kansas City representative of the corps, said a survey they made estimated damages in Beatrice at $1,809,495. State estimates had totaled approximately $5.2 million.

The surprisingly low corps total appeared to diminish hopes of some basin officials for a new look at four proposed upstream reservoirs. All had been declared economically unfeasible.

Only minutes before Day's report, manager Ron Fleecs of the Lower NRD had expressed optimism for a "re-analysis" which might reveal more favorable benefit-cost ratios on the dam. He had noted that the state estimate was "about five times" the $1.1 million the corps had once predicted for a theoretical 100-year flood.

Chances for the dam also appeared to lessen when Day called attention to the formula used in compiling benefits. Citing the proposed Beaver Crossing Dam as an example, he explained that of $6.6 million in assigned annual benefits less than 6% was based on flood control. Irrigation and recreation accounted for the balance.

Aithough the Beaver Crossing structure showed the most favorable ratio, returning about 80 cents for each $1 cost, Day said the flood control benefits were "similar" on all four dams.

"Obviously it would take considerably higher flood control benefits to substantially change the ratio," explained the engineer.

Day also reported agricultural damage estimates of $1,652,700 on a stretch of the river between DeWitt and Wymore. This compares to a state estimate of about $1.8 million.

He also reported that the Beatrice levee project, authorized in 1963 but deferred in inactive status, is to be recomputed. If found to be feasible now, he said the project could revert to active status without requiring a complete new study.

In 1963 the cost estimate was $1,698,000, figured on a 100-year basis. It has since been revised and totals $4,922,000.

The engineer said survey teams will be returning to the area soon to obtain damage figures for Crete and DeWitt.

On another matter, it was reported by Al Mathews, floodplain management engineer for the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission, that the Big Blue Basin probably will receive prompt priority for a floodplain study. If legislative funding is received, he said the entire basin "from Seward to the Kansas border" will be delineated.

He said work could begin as early as next July. Towns along the river, as well as agricultural land, would be included in the survey.

Snagging and clearing of the river channel came in for discussion, as it has at previous sessions. Day said a contract on a study of such a project, requested a year ago, probably will be let next spring.

Jim Cook, attorney for the Nebraska Commission, reviewed statutes covering such work. He said it appears that "virtually everybody has the authority for the work, but nobody has the responsibility."

Norm Behrens of Crete, a director of the Lower NRD, urged that the two units "work as one watershed united instead of one divided." He particularly called for the Upper NRD to support reservoir construction.

Later in the meeting, however, chairman Ray Burke of the Upper NRD, said that the district still has little interest in such construction.

Limits Voted On Windfall Fuel Profits

Washington (AP) — The House Commerce Committee voted Wednesday night to restrict any windfall profits reaped as a result of the energy crisis.

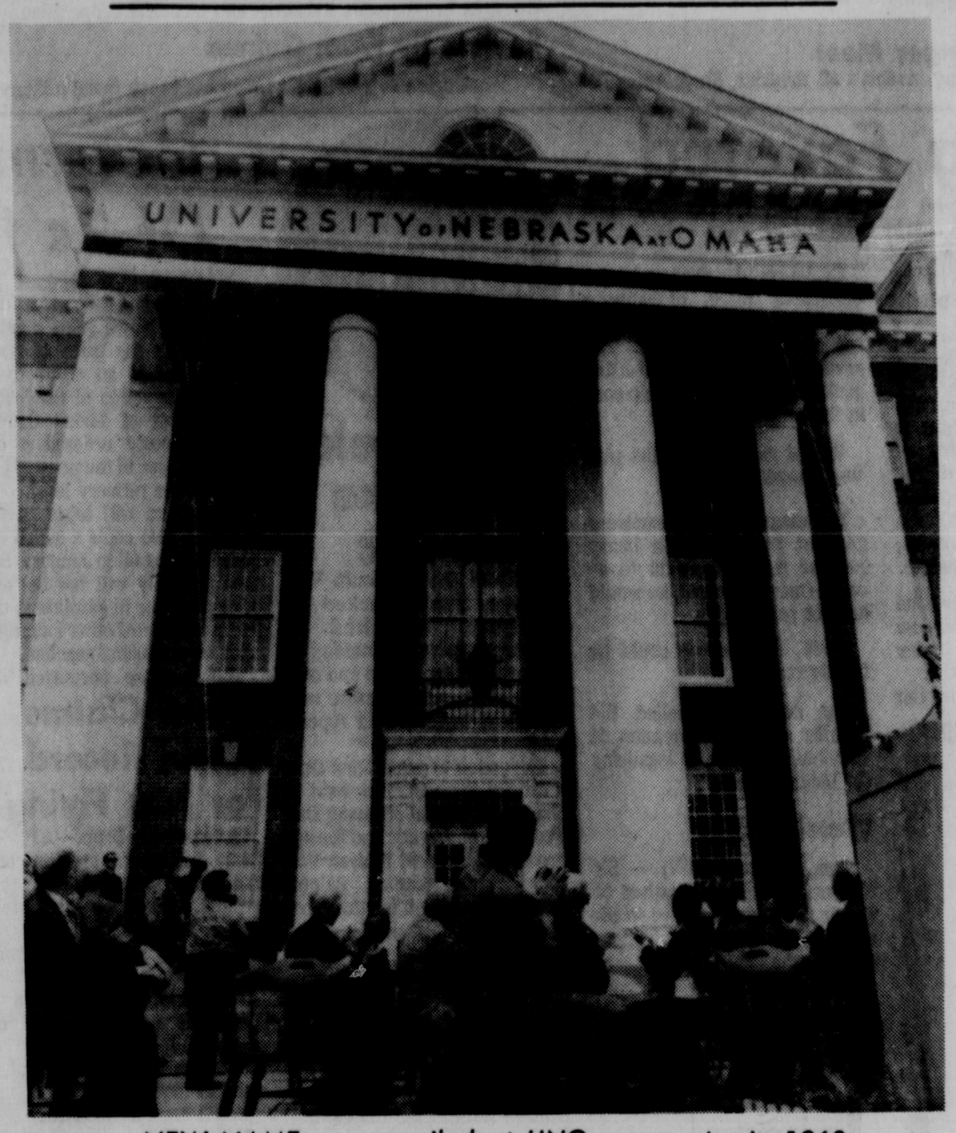
By voice vote, the committee adopted an amendment by Rep. William R. Roy, D-Kan., authorizing the President to use his economic powers to set prices on crude oil, petroleum products and coal so that scarce supplies would not allow fuel suppliers and producers to earn excess profits.

The committee also rejected an attempt by Rep. James T. Broyhill, R-N.C., to kill an amendment adopted earlier that would give Congress the final say over any energy conservation plan ordered by the proposed Federal Energy Administration. Broyhill claimed the amendment "effectively guts the bill, but Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., ruled Broyhill's attempt to alter the measure out of order.

Earlier the committee reserved itself and voted to cut the federal government's limousine fleet as an example to the rest of the country of the need to save gasoline.

The amendment by Rep. Bertram L1 Podell, D-N.Y., originally had been defeated after Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., pointed out that many high government officials already have relinquished their limousines voluntarily.

But Podell succeeded in attaching his amendment as a rider to another amendment designed to promote the use of car pools.



NEW NAME . . . unveiled at UNO ceremonies in 1968.

Most Leaders Would Still Support Creation Of UNO

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles by The Star's education and political writers about the now-federated University of Nebraska.)

By MILAN WALL
and DON WALTON
Star Staff Writers

If they had to decide again today, most state leaders surveyed by The Star would still support the creation of the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

But there are exceptions . . . and reservations . . . and some suggestions for change.

Lincoln insurance executive George Cook supported the action in 1967. Now he believes "we acted a little hastily, and I would not support the merger today unless there was a better understanding of how the two universities were going to operate in the future."

Cook is concerned about the effect the confederation may

Federation
O.U. [illegible] - YES!

have had on the future quality of the University of Nebraska.

"The biggest mistake we can make," Cook said, "is to have two substandard or inferior universities rather than one excellent university."

Grand Island banker Richard E.k Spelts Jr. opposed the idea in 1967. "At that time," he said, "I felt it was a bail-out for the Omaha taxpayers to give the rest of the citizens of the State of Nebraska an opportunity to assume the tax load.

"But I have changed my mind and I feel that I was wrong and the legislators were right," Spelts said.

Some respondents, including Lincoln banker Paul Amen and two Lincoln campus faculty leaders, would prefer a new arrangement.

"I would support the same concept, but expand the principle to include all public state colleges," Amen said.

"My position today would be essentially that the legislation should have stated that Nebraska would maintain a single, high quality university — as our resources and tradition suggest is possible — and

NU Needs Cited . . .

Change Proposed. . .

develop five first-rate four-year institutions, including a state-supported four-year institution in Omaha," NU-Lincoln Faculty Senate President Wallace Peterson said.

"I approve of the idea of state support for what was the University of Omaha, but on the basis of the foregoing arrangement."

Desmond . M. S. Wheeler, chairman of the Faculty Senate liasion committee in Lincoln, opposed the confederation in 1967.

"Looking back," he said, "I think ideally Omaha should have been made part of the state college system where it would have fit more logically.

"Now, I think the best solution would be for the state colleges to be taken into the NU system" under one governing board, Wheeler said.

The new system should include one Ph.D. institution (Lincoln), one medical college and five state colleges (including what is now UNO), he said.

Omaha business leaders Willis Strauss and Thomas Nurnberger and Omaha attorney Robert Spire all supported the 1967 action — and they still do.

So does Elton Carter, UNO faculty president.

Although, upon reflection, he believes the confederation may have been implemented too swiftly, former Gov. Norbert Tiemann said he would still support the action.

"I think it was a wise move," Gov. J. James Exon said. "UNO serves a great population center in Nebraska, and I think we have an obligation to provide facilities for higher education where they are needed."

As a matter of fact, Exon said, "it so happens that in all of public higher education in Nebraska today, only one school — UNO — shows any increase in total student body members and hours taught."

Former NU Chancellor Clifford Hardin, now in St. Louis as vice chairman of the board of Ralston Purina Company, only saw the new system in operation for six months.

"At the time I left the university I still felt that the merger was a sound course of action for the State of Nebraska," Hardin said.

A number of state senators who participated in the survey said they would support the action again today.

"I would do the same as I did in the first place," Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff declared.

"I would be less than honest were I to state that I have not had several second thoughts about my (supporting) vote," Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln noted.

"Nevertheless, I would probably vote the same way again in the same optimistic spirit that this action was needed for strengthening higher education in Nebraska."

Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln, a co-sponsor of Carpenter's 1967 bill, said "the young people at UNO need the same chance at an education even if Omaha failed in its financial support" of the former municipal university.

NU Regent Robert Raun of Minden said he was "quite neutral" about the action taken in 1967. But, he said, the decision remains "basically sound from an education standpoint."

Saudi Says Oil To Flow To Match Israeli Retreat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabian oil minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani said Wednesday his government would relax its oil embargo in phased steps with Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab lands.

He told newsmen following an hour meeting with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that "if Israel decides to withdraw and agrees to a timetable there could be a timetable to relax the embargo."

Yamani and Algierian minister of industry and energy Belaid Abdesalam spent most of Wednesday afternoon in meetings with various State Department officials, including Kissinger.

They described the discussions as "frank and helpful discussions" which will be continued.

Saudi Arabia holds the world's largest known reserves of oil and has been among the leaders in a boycott of petroleum supplies for the United States and industrial nations who have diplomatic relations with Israel.

The embargo was declared total against the United States during the October Arab-Israeli War and was accompanied by cuts in production of supplies earmarked for Western Europe and Japan.

Until Wednesday, Yamani had said any resumption of his nation's oil production was conditioned on Israeli withdrawal from all lands taken in the 1967 war as well as the October conflict.

The Saudi Arabian official was asked if the start of a Middle East peace conference would in itself lead to a relaxation of the Arab oil restrictions. "I don't think the conference itself will cause that," he answered.

He added that the results of the meetings beginning Dec. 18 in Geneva are what will count.

Yamani's statement that a phased withdrawal of Israeli forces might lead to a phased increase in Arab oil supplies was similar to an assessment made this week by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho. The freshman senator returned this week from a tour of the Middle East and indicated there might be an oil settlement linked to a step-by-step Israeli pullback.

The Saudi Arabian minister told reporters that a solution to the oil problem might not come any time soon, however he said he hoped an answer "would not be a far one."

Few Local Thermostats At 68-Degree Mark

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Temperatures may be falling, but in many Lincoln stores and institutions they haven't hit the 68-degree low requested by President Nixon in the nation's battle to combat the energy crisis.

Only three of 18 locales surveyed this week had room temperatures at or below the 68-degree mark.

An indoor-outdoor thermometer was hand-carried to the testing stations, as a check against variations in individual thermostat readings.

Vying for the lowest mercury reading were University of Nebraska-Lincoln Chancellor James H. Zumberge's office and the County-City Building's driver's license application office which were a chilly 66 degrees.

Overcoat-clad patrons at the Bennett Martin Library shivered in a 67-degree setting.

From there it was an uphill climb for the mercury.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf's office was a moderate 70 degrees and afternoon snacks in the County City Building cafeteria were consumed in a warm 72 degrees.

UNL Administration Building temperatures ranged from Zumberge's 66-degree office to student records and the Graduate College with 70-degree readings and 72 in the personnel office.

Meanwhile, across the street, UNL students dining in the cafeteria or studying in the lounge were sweltering in 74-degree temperatures.

At the Capitol, temperatures in the Governor's Reception Room varied from 70 degrees alongside the south wall to 73 on the north side of the room. And a 72-degree gust of hot air was blowing between the locked doors of the Unicameral chamber.

Mercury readings in Rep. Charles Thone's local office were 72.

Persons were doing their money transactions in summertime temperatures of 73 degrees at First National Bank and 76 degrees at National Bank of Commerce.

And shoppers laden with Christmas packages had songs going through their heads while shopping in Miller and Paine's linen department and Brandeis' toy department.

But the tunes were probably more like "Moon Over Miami" than "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas" as the mercury reading in Miller's was a tropical 73 degrees and bundled up gift seekers in Brandeis were sweltering in a not-so-cool 78-degree setting.

New York Times News Summary

Egypt Adds To Suspense On Participation In Talks

(c) New York Times News Service

Cairo — The Egyptian government told the United Nations that it had not decided on whether to resume the military talks with Israel that were suspended a week ago. The message, delivered to the commander of the United Nations Emergency Force in Egypt, added to the suspense over whether Egypt intends to attend the proposed full-scale peace conference scheduled to begin in Geneva Dec. 18.

Nixon Was 'Disturbed'

Washington — The President's chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig, testified that Nixon was "very, very disturbed," and "almost incredulous," when he was told Nov. 15 of the 18-minute gap in one of the subpoenaed White House tapes. Though the President's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, has testified that she told the President immediately after she discovered several minutes of shrill buzzing Oct. 1, the White House has maintained that the full extent of the gap and the fact that the affected tape was one of the subpoenaed recordings was not discovered until mid-November.

AMA Opposes Monitoring

Anaheim, Calif. — The American Medical Association voted to oppose a federally mandated system to monitor their competence, but delegates to the AMA convention agreed not to mount a nationwide campaign to repeal the law slated to take effect in 1976.

Yamani, Kissinger Meet

Washington — Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, met with Secretary of State Kissinger and then said that peace in the Middle East was "now more feasible than at any time in the past." (More on Page 1.)

Nixon, Ceausescu Sign

Washington — President Nixon and President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania signed a joint statement to document the "continued development of friendly relations" between the two countries. The statement — the first of its kind ever issued by the United States and a Soviet bloc nation — was supplemented by a joint declaration committing the United States and Romania to economic, industrial and technical cooperation.

Soviets Fly From Guinea

Washington — The Soviet Union has begun flying military reconnaissance missions from the West African nation of Guinea, according to Pentagon officials, who said the flights apparently monitor ship movements in the South Atlantic. Analysts said the new patrols give the Soviet Union a reconnaissance capability over almost all of the Atlantic and represent what some officials regard as a further extension of Soviet military power into Africa.

Twin Energy Moves Made

Washington — In twin moves designed to increase the proportion of heating oil produced by the nation's refiners by making it more profitable than gasoline, the administration approved a two-cent a gallon increase in the price refiners charge for heating oil and ordered a penny a gallon reduction in the refiners' price for gasoline. (More on Page 2.)

'White Market' Rationing Favored

Washington (AP) — President Nixon's energy advisers, considering proposals to ration gasoline, are leaning toward a plan in which coupons would be transferable and have value like money.

The proposal, dubbed the "white market" by government planners, could be combined with a stiff increase in the federal gasoline tax or stand alone as a coupon system.

Sources said the transferable-coupon idea is now tops at the list of proposals should President Nixon decide that gasoline rationing is necessary. They emphasized no final decision on rationing has been made.

The new energy czar, William E. Simon, is known to favor a combination of the transferable-coupon idea and a gasoline tax to cut consumer demand for gasoline.

Government planners said a World War II-type plan, in which coupons were nontransferable among drivers, has been all but rejected, even though it had been the standby rationing plan for years.

Administration planners like the transferable-coupon approach because, as one said, "it would stop the black market and the bureaucracy would be smaller."

The black market flourished in World War II despite a huge bureaucracy set up to run the rationing program.

Here's how the proposal might work, under one procedure:

Each motorist or vehicle would be issued a specified number of coupons, each limiting them to a specific number of gallons.

Present thinking is to issue the coupons either by drivers' license or by vehicle registration. The administration is reported to be thinking of allowing 10 to 15 gallons of gasoline per week. The coupons, however, would be good for a period of several weeks, meaning they could be saved up.

But, if a motorist found he didn't want to use all of them, he could sell them freely or barter them off or give them away.

"He could put an ad in the newspaper, for example," said one official.

Or, he could cash them in at a designated place, probably a bank, for money at a price to be set by the government. The government is thinking of using banks to help issue and help cash in the coupons.

With a gasoline tax, the plan would work differently.

The coupons would excuse a motorist from paying a heavy gasoline tax of from 20 to 40 cents. Once he ran out, he would have to pay the tax.

Again, the coupons could be transferred.

The proposal is called the "white market" because it amounts, in effect, to legalizing the black market.

Viets Seek To Retake Kien Duc

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese troops backed by bombers launched a counteroffensive Wednesday to retake a district capital and ease North Vietnamese pressure on a provincial capital, field reports said.

The action to retake Kien Duc, a district town 12 miles west of Gia Nghia, capital of Quang Duc Province, apparently had the approval of President Nguyen Van Thieu understanding Saigon policy to retake all territory lost to the Communist side since the January cease-fire.

It widened the battle of more than a month near the Cambodian border for control of strategic supply routes leading southward to Saigon, about 100 miles away. Some South Vietnamese sources see the central highlands fighting as a prelude to a general North Vietnamese offensive next year.

As the fighting intensified to its highest magnitude of the cease-fire, the South Vietnamese government urged the 12 countries that endorsed the truce at a meeting in Paris last February to act to dissuade North Vietnam from launching a general offensive.

Santa Claims World Record For Fast Flying

Greenwich, Conn. (AP) — Henry J. Cooper, a greeting card executive who claims the world's record for the fastest round the world flight on scheduled airlines, says his claim has been challenged.

The challenge came in a Christmas card, the text of which read:

"The world record my foot,
It just isn't true,
You'll have to try harder
You're still number two."

The card was signed Santa Claus.

The card showed Santa circumnavigating the globe in 12 hours.

Cooper says he flew around the globe in 36 hours, 19 minutes and 33 seconds last April.

As to the challenge, he observed that Santa does not depend on a scheduled airline.

Government Authorizes Rise Of 2¢ In Heating Oil Price

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government Wednesday authorized a two cents a gallon increase in the price of home heating oil in an effort to increase production of the fuel.

The Cost of Living Council simultaneously ordered a one cent decrease in the price of gasoline at the refinery level.

Consumers will begin paying the extra two cents a gallon for home heating oil in January. But they probably will not see any price decrease in gasoline at the pump because of other increased costs in producing gasoline.

The increase permitted for heating oil applies to all distillate oils from refineries including diesel fuel, kerosene, and jet fuel.

The action will serve as a test of the theory of many high administration officials that the government can force adjustments to the country's energy shortage by changing prices.

In other energy developments:

—The Cost of Living council said it is estimating the potential shortage of petroleum resulting from the Arab oil embargo at 2.1 million barrels a day, considerably less than the White House estimate of 3.5 million barrels a day.

—The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration said the nation may face an increase in street crime and consumer fraud as a result of the energy crisis. Brownouts could curtail street lighting, it said, and a target of con men could be activities related to the energy crisis.

—Senate-House conferees will meet Thursday to work out a compromise bill that would put the nation on year-round daylight saving time, probably by Dec. 30.

—Arthur M. Okun, an economic adviser to the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, said that gasoline station riots may occur if the government fails to act quickly to ration gasoline or pass a tax to dampen its consumption.

—The Senate refused to delay action on a $20 billion, 10-year program of energy research and development.

—The American Petroleum Institute survey reported an expected increase in operable petroleum refining capacity of 3.5 per cent by next Sept. 30 because of increased refining facilities.

The price adjustments for heating oil and gasoline are designed to make it equally profitable for refiners to produce heating oil. Traditionally, gasoline has been the more profitable product.

Council Director John T. Dunlop said the council will announce incentives next week to encourage refiners to produce more heating oil.

The two-cent increase will represent a seven per cent hike over the present heating oil price of about 28 cents per gallon, Dunlop said.

Israel Denies Claim Egypt Shot Down Jet

By The Associated Press

Egypt claimed its defenses shot down an Israeli jet near the Suez Canal on Wednesday and a bomb that exploded on a bus near Tel Aviv contributed to mounting tension in the Middle East.

An Israeli spokesman immediately denied the report that the Israeli Phantom jet was downed near Ismailia.

An Egyptian military spokesman in Cairo said the downed plane was one of two that intruded into Egyptian air space over the canal city. He said it was hit by ground fire, but he did not mention the fate of the crew.

The downing of a plane would be one of the most serious violations of the cease-fire on the Suez front in recent weeks and the worst since the breakdown of Egyptian-Israeli cease-fire talks a week ago.

In Tel Aviv a military spokesman reported two Israeli soldiers were killed and five injured in incidents Tuesday along the Suez front. And in Cairo the government-controlled press portrayed the front as growing more tense every day.

A senior Israeli officer said that following the stalemate in truce talks "each side is preparing for the worst."

He said Israel had no intention of renewing the war, but its forces have been restored to their old strength and are ready, if necessary, to fight Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

"The Israeli army is in what we call an alert position . . . We are not going to start a new war, but we have to be ready to face hostilities . . . even on a third front, the eastern front, which has been quiet so far," the officer said, referring to the thus far quiet Jordanian front.

The bomb explosion aboard a Tel Aviv bus was the second major incident of sabotage in two days. On Tuesday a grenade explosion in Jerusalem's old city wounded 18 persons.

The truce talks on troop pullbacks remained stalemated, with the Egyptians still studying a proposal made by Israel Tuesday. It was transmitted to the Egyptians by United Nations Middle East commander, Maj. Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo.

U.N. spokesman Rudolf Stajduhar reported an increase in shooting incidents. "Preliminiary reports for Tuesday indicate more firing incidents compared with the previous four days, particularly in the Ismailia-Suez area," he said.

Despite the upsurge, he added, "we consider the cease-fire is still holding on."

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan addressed the policy makers of his Labor party in Tel Aviv and declared he would not serve in the next government if Israel agrees to a separate Palestininan state west of the Jordan River.

He said such a state would be "a threat to the very existence of the state of Israel."

Dayan told the party's central committee, meeting to work out a platform for the Dec 31 elections, that Israel faced a prolonged military and political struggle with the Arab states.

Nixon Shuffles Civil Rights Jobs

Washington (AP) — President Nixon announced Wednesday that he will nominate Arthur S. Flemming to be chairman of the Commission on Civil Rights, replacing the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh.

The chairmanship has been vacant for more than a year.

Flemming was a Cabinet member in Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration and is now commissioner on aging.

Actually, Flemming 68, replaces Maurice Mitchell, whose resignation was announced simultaneously by the commission, which was set up to investigate complaints by citizens who are being deprived of their rights to vote or to equal protection of the law by reason of race, color, religion, sex or national origin.

$325 Cash Stolen

About $325 worth of cash and a transistor radio valued at $10 was taken in a burglary at the Frank T. Lopp home at 3745 So. 40th, according to police reports Wednesday. Police said entrance to the home was apparently gained by jimmying open a rear door.

Actor Dies

Actor Michael O'Shea, 67, husband of movie star Virginia Mayo, died Tuesday in Dallas, Tex., apparently of a heart attack. He had planned to join his wife in the cast of "40 Carats," which is playing at a dinner theater.

House Set To OK Ford

Washington (UPI) — The House Rules Committee moved unanimously and quickly Wednesday to clear Rep. Gerald B. Ford's nomination as vice president for a floor vote Thursday.

The committee, which determines procedures under which bills come to the floor for action, agreed with Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the Jouse Judiciary Committee, to set six hours of debate before the vote is taken.

Even Ford's opponents concede final confirmation is certain and with that in mind swearing in ceremonies have been planned in detail, including live television as Chief Justice Warren Burger administers the oath.

Foreign Aid Bill Given OK By Senators, 44-41

Washington (AP) — The Senate approved a $2.39 billion foreign aid authorization bill Wednesday. The vote was 44 to 41.

The bill now goes to the White House.

Opposition was led by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, who said the "principal purpose of foreign aid today is to subsidize vested interests here and abroad."

The Senate has rejected two previous foreign aid bills in the past two years. The program has been funded through a series of "continuing resolutions" gearing spending to appropriations for fiscal year 1971.

"That is no way to run a railroad, an aid program or anything else," said Sen. George Aiken of Vermont, ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The bill, which passed the House Tuesday by a 210-193 vote, would allot $1.41 billion to economic aid and $962 million for military assistance.

The bill authorizes $504 million for humanitarian aid and reconstruction in Indochina. But it repeats the ban adopted four times previously by Congress this year on the use of any funds for U.S. military operations in Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia.

Israel is earmarked for $300 million in military credit sales and $50 million in security supporting assistance.

A $2.2 billion administration request for replacement of military equipment lost by Israel in the October Middle East war is included in separate legislation to be considered later.

Earnings Reported

Seattle (AP) — The Boeing Co. reported its net earnings for the first nine months of 1973 totalled $37.36 million on sales of $2.39 billion, a substantial increase from the first nine months of last year.

Hruska Votes For Aid Bill

Washington (AP) — Among Republicans voting for passage of the $2.39 billion foreign aid authorization bill Wednesday was Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb.

Sen. Hruska On Losing Side

Washington (AP) — Republican Sen. Roman Hruska of Nebraska voted with the losing side Tuesday as the Senate voted 55 to 29 to table and thereby kill a minimum wage amendment to the daylight saving time bill. Sen. Carl Curtis of Nebraska was not listed as voting.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The Pioneer 10 mission to Jupiter and beyond is the kind of thing that boggles the mind. Having already traveled some 700 million miles, this 560 pound craft is destined to log, not millions but billions of miles in space and finally to pass out of the solar system into an unknown beyond.

If Pioneer would happen to come into contact, in that beyond, with any form of intelligent life, it contains on its side a drawing of a man and woman as we know them and an astronomical road map directing the way to earth. Already, it has sent back to earth pictures of Jupiter showing that planet from angles never before available to man.

We would not pretend to really understand this probe of our universe except to note that it is supposed to vastly expand mankind's knowledge of the world in which he lives. Other than that, we simply marvel at the seeming complexity of the feat and the human genius that has gone into it.

One might marvel, however, at some strictly earthly matters if he so desires. Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said it "kind of left me speechless" when he learned of a gift of up to $200,000 to the city from the late Viola C. Jelinek. The funds come in honor of Miss Jelinek's father, Stephen Jelinek, who was an instructor in music at the University of Nebraska, where Miss Jelinek taught chemistry from 1935-37.

There is nothing astounding in this from a personal point of view, as that might tend to reflect something one way or another upon Miss Jelinek. It is the unexpected nature of the thing and its place in the scheme of affairs that leaves you pleasantly bewildered.

One can marvel, for instance, at the continuing evidence of one individual's unselfish concern for their fellow man. One can marvel at the extraordinary humanity that continues to mold the community of Lincoln.

Despite the fact that few of her working years were spent in Lincoln and Nebraska, Miss Jelinek obviously retained a strong affinity for this community. This was no doubt enhanced by the fact that her father made his career here, at the School of Music prior to the time around 1939 when it became a formal and official part of the University of Nebraska.

The family was of Czech origin, chalking up another in an endless list of benefits to come Nebraska's way as a result of the many of such background who settled in this state.

Miss Jelinek was born in Crete and educated there, in the Lincoln school system and the University of Nebraska. Yet, she might well have given her estate to some other cause and to some other region.

Her gift to Lincoln will be used to make improvements at Pinewood Bowl in Pioneers Park, obviously a fitting tribute to her trumpet-playing father. This is a magnificent park and the bowl a unique natural theater, both of which we now enjoy as the result of the generosity of the Harris family of past Lincoln years.

It is understood that a yet to be determined amount of Miss Jelinek's estate will go to the School of Music at Nebraska.

Such gifts in the past have contributed greatly in making Lincoln what it is today and will undoubtedly continue to do so in the future. There obviously exists within the fabric of this area an intangible kind of appreciation of the people, institutions and way of life that are found here.

Thus, the Jelinek gift has meaning far beyond its strictly monetary value.

Enough Watergate To Go Around

Sen. Sam Ervin's Watergate investigating committee may disband in mid-winter because members feel they may suffer from charges of playing partisan politics during the 1974 election year.

But the committee, which has lately been holding executive sessions, may yet recapture the headlines when it resumes public hearings for a short time in January. Presidential chum Bebe Rebozo may be called upon to explain the details of the Hughes contribution. Whether or not he responds to the subpoena and what he says if he does may spark some fireworks.

It is obvious, however, that the Ervin committee has fallen on hard times. The members have lost some of their star quality. They have almost run out of big name witnesses and the feeling that the Democratic majority is engaging in partisan persecution is strong.

Some of the criticism of the committee, we think, is unfair and unfounded. While some of the members obviously relished the national attention that centered on them through the TV cameras and the press, they had an important job to do and it perhaps isn't done yet. The Republicans who want the hearings ended are as partisan as they accuse the committee of being because they want politically damaging revelations swept under the rug. The argument that the subject matter dug out by the committee now belongs in the courts is valid, but Congress, with its investigatory powers, still has the right to turn up new evidence.

Shutting off the Ervin committee will not dull congressional appetities to get to the bottom of things, however, and that is good.

Columnist Marianne Means reports that the Senate Commerce Committee will inherit the raw data and research produced by the Ervin committee staff once the Watergate hearings are ended. The commerce panel may probe into the way that donations from carpet manufacturers may have influenced new federal flammability standards and contributions from airlines may have played a role in Civil Aeronautics Board appointments and decisions. The Senate's Permanent Investigation Committee under Sen. Henry M. Jackson also has expressed interest in some of the unanswered questions raised by Watergate committee testimony.

As one Commerce Committee staff member told Miss Means, "there's still plenty in that Watergate mess for everybody."

Human Side Of Money

Whatever else it might be, money is often characterized as the curse of mankind — the root of all evil, as the saying goes. As is generally the case, however, such a one-sided view fails to do justice.

Money, in the form of such things as the surpassing of a $1,285,975 United Fund drive this year, is far from an evil. Money, in the form of such things as the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. gift of $3,000 to the Nebraska Independent College Foundation, Inc., is far from evil.

Goodyear's gift is to assist in the continued training of college students in Nebraska by the independent colleges. Goodyear has in its employ many former students of these institutions.

The gift stands, of course, on its own merits but it is expecially welcome in the emphasis it places on the role of private schools of higher education in Nebraska. Here is a system of higher education that has made a fantastic contribution in human and economic terms to Nebraska and the nation but which seldom seems to get the recognition and support it needs and deserves.

The Goodyear gift is welcome, not only for what it will do for its direct student recipients, but for the tribute it pays to the independent college system.

The success of the United Fund drive tells us another story about the better side of human nature. It tells us about the great spirit of community service exemplified by the volunteer leadership and workers in the campaign structure, men and women who have given freely of their time and talents for the sake of others.

And it tells us of the willingness to sacrifice on the part of the many thousands who gave of their material possessions to this campaign so that life might be a little better for those among us who need our help. Money, of course, can represent greed but it, also, can cultivate our humanity and contribute to the dignity of mankind.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Parsnips, firm and sweet, are being cooked for supper tonight. They are one of my favorite vegetables as I think I have said many a time.

The word was years ago that parsnips to be of highest eating quality should be left in the ground over winter to freeze, then dug in the spring and eaten when the winter-weary appetite would be hungry for something different.

Now parsnips are dug and sold in supermarkets in the fall. We have had them before and I can report the season of the year in which they are eaten makes little difference to me.

I never plant parsnips in the garden, although now that they are equally good in the fall I am tempted to add some next spring. Did I say "spring?"

It seems that spring is so far away with Christmas just ahead . . . sale magazines with Santa on the front cover and holiday decorations in the stores. Our first Christmas card arrived on November 27.

I immediately took my box of Christmas cards from the cupboard, stirred about to find the address book and blinked. It can't be . . . it just can't be that another Christmas season is so near at hand. It seemed such a short time ago that the grass was growing almost faster than the mower could keep it clipped.

However, as I look out at the spot where the maple tree stood all leafy and green so short a time ago, I see long finger branches, bare and gray reaching toward the sky. The robin's nest is still there anchored securely midway in the tree, the only black mass to mar the barren tree. Every morning it is topped with frosty white crystals and soon with a mound of snow. These things tell me that summer and autumn have passed and Christmas and snow are truly close at hand. I had best get into the spirit of things . . . look up my favorite cookie and candy recipes, get a supply of stamps and settle down into the mood of spreading Christmas cheer.

Let's see now . . . "How to make a pine-cone wreath." First, gather your pine cones . . . larger ones for the outside ring, medium size for the middle row and small ones for the inner ring.

Well, I'm stopped before I can get started. There's not a pine tree for miles around that has shed enough cones to get an adequate supply.

Now, about the walnuts in the shell that are to be spray painted a bright red and tied together in groups of three, clustered around the wreath like holly berries — hmmmmmm, only five left over from Thanksgiving. Not enough of those to look proper on any wreath. I may as well eat them.

There goes my first Christmas idea, or could I be suffering from an energy crisis?

Really, it seems anyone can become an expert in this age by jumping on the bandwagon with authority. I have heard and read numerous people suddenly become versed in every problem that comes across the wires. The ultimate was an interview with a little boy on the energy crisis.

What did he think of it?

"Well, I don't know but it's pretty bad . . . real bad. Now I won't get my electric train for Christmas."

Who had put the ideas into his small head when actually children aren't bothered by such hardships as these, if they can be called hardships?

If a child can run and jump and is left to his own imagination, he will not be unduly bothered. Children aren't concerned with such things and should not be worried. It is only because it is repeated over and over until even I become weary of it.

If families need more togetherness as some "authoritative sources" have warned, then let's try to be together on Saturday night and over the weekend. Make our own entertainment and get to know ourselves. Perhaps it will bring the family back in harmony again and all people will be the happier for it.

I can begin right now to plot my weekend . . . like hunting for a big pine tree.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by the writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Childish Behavior

Lincoln, Neb.

This is an open letter to the student body, Millard Lefler Junior High School.

The bridge between practical jokes, harmless pranks, or mischief on the one hand and vandalism or wanton destruction of property on the other has been spanned numerous times by members of your group.

Windows on the southeast ground level of your school appear to be prime targets and, curiously, the putty or glazing compound has been systematically chipped away from each sash. Picnic benches supplied by the city for Piedmont Park (fabricated of heavy planking, tubular steel and one-half inch bolts) have been completely destroyed or rendered unfit for use. finally, on the Wednesday afternoon preceding Thanksgiving, eight pupils (readily identifiable as boys because of their short, shoulder-length hair) conscientiously, painstakingly and thoroughly flattened approximately 50 yards of snow fence paralleling C St. This damage was repaired by city employes on the following day (23 November) and again leveled early Saturday morning.

These acts are costly, childish and require no particular degree of intelligence. As a matter of fact, chimpanzees could probably be trained to emulate their human counterparts and might just possible surpass them in efficiency.

However, it is conceded that rebellion could be met during the schooling period as it is a known fact that members of the animal kingdom are rarely destructive.

Anti-DST

Brainard, Neb.

I am writing this in regard to Daylight Savings Time. I, for one, am strongly against it. It is a known fact that what electricity would be saved in the evening would be used in the morning, so there would be no saving of electricity there.

The only thing it is going to do is shorten the nights for the little children who go to school. I have seen children waiting for the bus to go to school in the morning in the dark and that is when a lot of the crimes take place. Those poor children are standing on the road helpless.

If some think that they can change it, they should start with the sun, which I know would be awful hard to do, as there is only one time that the sun is straight up and that is 12 o'clock noon.

I hope the people will wake up. If I am wrong they can write and tell about it. The only ones getting any benefit out of it are the golf players.

Christmas Appeal

Beatrice, Neb.

Did you know there are many residents at the Beatrice State Home for Retarded Children who no longer have parents or relatives who remember them at Christmas?

This is a concern of the parents group (BSHARC) and we appeal to Nebraskans again this year to help us provide gifts for these children and adults.

Gifts for all ages are needed. Puzzles, toiletries, crafts, fishing equipment and toys are just a few ideas. For more suggestions and project ideas for civic, youth and church groups such as providing entertainment, adopting an individual or a whole ward, write to Special Services, Beatrice State Home, Beatrice, Nebraska 68310. Gifts and money may be sent to that address also.

Count yourself one of the privileged who helped make this the happiest Christmas ever at the Beatrice State Home.

MRS. LOUIS HETHERINGTON

Where Stands Curtis?

Fairbury, Neb.

I noticed in Friday's (Nov. 30) paper on page 2 the following: "Curtis Opposes Higher Benefit." The article referred to Senate passage the day before of a proposal allowing retired workers to earn $3,000 a year without loss of Social Security benefits. The vote was 83-1, with Senator Carl Curtis casting the lone negative vote.

Reading further I noticed on page 25 the following: "Nursing Homes Honor Curtis." This article stated that Sen. Curtis was a recipient of the American Nursing Home Association's government award for 1973. He was named last Thursday at the group's 24th annual convention in New Orleans. Curtis was cited for concern and leadership in Social Security and other areas.

I gave up on the question "which came first, the egg or the chicken?" I now wonder "which came first Thursday, the award or the 83-1 vote?" Also, if Curtis is a leader in Social Security, shouldn't someone tell the other 83 about it?

Dedication

Lincoln, Neb.

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to the Lancaster County deputy sheriffs and many of their wives for the almost continuous vigil and dedicated concern for Frank Furrer during his confinement to the hospital bed.

Their comforting words, and their very presence during these anxious moments and days were a source of strength to the family. Most of this vigil was kept during their off-duty hours.

We also want to thank the deputies for serving as pall bearers and honor guard for Frank's funeral.

Lancaster County should be proud of the dedicated men who serve as deputy sheriffs.

Simple Plan

Denton, Neb.

I am sure that King Richard would approve of my simple but effective plan to curb the current energy crisis.

(a) Raise the price of gasoline to $2.50 per gallon. This procedure if enforced nationwide would discourage the purchase of gasoline.

(b) Increase the solution of a mixture of a five per cent watered-down gasoline to a mere 15%.

(c) Get Johnny Cash to visit schools to discourage teenage consumption of fuel.

KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

Rocky's Last Chance May Be His Best

WASHINGTON — Nelson A. Rockefeller, not King Robert the Bruce, must have been in that damp Scottish cave with that well-remembered, persistent spider. Certainly, the New York governor has not succumbed to political discouragement, witness the early December signs of his fourth bid for the White House (yes, fourth — 1960, 1964, 1968, a few private 1971-72 mutterings, and now 1976).

But this time, and despite his advancing age, 65, Nelson Rockefeller may have a real chance of becoming President.

Here's the early geography: Frontrunner Ronald Reagan has the bulk of the forces on the right; John Connally has a smaller slice of right-center; and Chuck Percy is on the left, actually doing Rockefeller a favor by drawing off the liberal fringe and black-youth-Ripon Society strategists who used to make Rockefeller so anathema to party regulars.

As part of his ideological metamorphosis Rockefeller has been taking increasingly conservative stands on issues like busing and welfare, and he recently collected a major dividend: Old 1964 foe Barry Goldwater now lists the New York Governor as one of the three acceptable GOP candidates for 1976.

While no announcement is expected until January, many political observers expect Rockefeller to step down as governor of New York and stake his future on captaining the new Rockefeller-organized "National Commission on Critical Choices for America."

Looking toward 1976, the commission membership also serves several other Rockefeller angles. Lane Kirkland, Secretary-Treasurer of the AFL-CIO, is on board. Kirkland has also recently become a director of the Rockefeller Foundation, and many regard him as a close link between Rockefeller and AFL-CIO chief George Meany.

Secondly, the Critical Choices Commission also includes two of the Nixon White House's most talented former domestic policy planners — Daniel P. Moynihan, now Ambassador to India, and Martin Anderson of California's Hoover Institute (who played a major role in blueprinting the 1972 Republican Presidential campaign platform).

If Rockefeller plays his ideological cards right, he could — in sharp contrast to his previous campaigns — build a broad winning base for 1976.

First, Rockefeller has excellent lines to George Meany and organized labor; second, Rockefeller's New York election record demonstrates his drawing power among that state's large Catholic population; and last, Rockefeller finally sees the pivotal role that Southern conservatism has come to play in Republican politics.

Consequently, besides having a "labor strategy," Rockefeller also seems to be developing a "Southern Strategy." Back in October, some of his N.Y. conservative henchmen were quietly soliciting Dixie support for Rockefeller being named Vice President. And at his own request, the New York governor is expected to be in Atlanta for the Dec. 7-8 Southern Republican Conference, an important Dixie GOP gathering where Rockefeller will doubtless pitch his new conservative approach to social problems.

The Money Battle

WASHINGTON — The latest battle in the Senate to get some honest rules for financing political campaigns was defeated, but this was only the opening skirmish in a long war, and maybe the vote to delay a decision was not all bad.

Many of the senators who sustained the filibuster were not voting to maintain the present system of financing campaigns, which they know is a national disgrace. They were voting rather against the shotgun tactics of the reformers, who hitched the bill onto the emergency debt ceiling legislation, and demanded that the Senate choose betwen crippling the executive and reforming the election rules.

Their excuse was that they were up against an administration which has consistently opposed fundamental campaign reform, and also up against some members of the House and Senate who believe the present system favors the people now holding office. That is to say, themselves.

Also, Senators Kennedy, Mondale, and others who tried to ram through the campaign bill felt that they might get more votes now while the Watergate scandals were troubling the American people than they would next year when public attention might be less intense.

Maybe under the circumstances, the effort was justified, but its failure is no tragedy. There are many members of Congress — Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina for example — who favor campaign financing reform, but oppose the Kennedy-Mondale way of achieving it.

There are also many others who oppose on principle the tactic — some would call it the trick — of tacking a controversial bill onto a must-bill like the debt-ceiling question in order to force the President to agree to something he doesn't want in order to get legislation he has to have.

The irony of this is that the reformers were complaining that the Nixon administration in the last election had used improper means to achieve their ends, but in a way the reformers themselves were also using dubious means.

Remedies for all the blackmail fund-raising, the black-bag deceptions, illegal corporate contributions and laundered money through foreign countries are obviously essential, but this is a very complicated subject, and there is still time to appeal to the common sense of the county and argue out a careful and effective bill in the Congress before the end of the winter and the beginning of the 1974 elections.

So even if the first round in the struggle reassured the people who were for the old discredited system, the main and best part of the debate is still ahead.

Both sides had to agree to bring the issue to the floor early next year. Under this arrangement, it will not be possible to kill the question in committee, and there will be time to get the main arguments before the public.

This has not happened so far. The evils of the old system that contributed so much to the Watergate scandals are well known and widely opposed, but the complex questions of what to put in its place have not been debated adequately, even on Capitol Hill.

Once this has been conceded, however, two things are worth noting and remembering. First, after all the financial outrages of the 1972 presidential campaign, after all the misuse of funds by the Committee to Re-elect the President, and after all Nixon's rhetorical promises to correct the evils of the old campaign system, he has said not a single word during this latest debate in support of those pressing for reform.

On the contrary, he had his men lobbying in support of the filibuster without making clear whether he opposed the parliamentary tactics of the reformers or the substance of the reforms.

Maybe the record should also be kept of those members of Congress who oppose public financing of congressional campaigns for the simple and selfish reason that public financing would give outsiders an equal chance to lick them next November.

But there will be time to look into all this before the issue is really debated and voted up or down at the end of the winter. Time is not on the side of the old system. The more it is studied, the sillier it looks.

Little Said Done To Keep Crop Land

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

A member of the Seward Planning Committee bluntly told the Legislature's Committee on Agriculture that a lot of people paid lip service to the concept of protecting agricultural land, but that very little was actually done to protect farm land from developers.

Dorris Marxhausen said she also had problems identifying the enemy of agriculture in the question of protecting the land from developers.

"A farmer wants protection from having city people build around him until he wants to retire. If he has 160 acres someplace along a highway he wants to sell it to a developer at a high price. We all have these temptations," she said.

'Thinking It'

"It is the first time I have said this out loud, but I have been thinking it for some time," she added.

Asked if she would be willing to see tax money spent on some sort of incentive program that would encourage a farmer to keep on farming rather than sell to a developer, she said:

"It is one thing to use tax money for a park or for a wilderness area and quite another thing to spend tax money to preserve land for farming. I guess I do have an interest in keeping land in agriculture, but at this point I wouldn't touch that question with a ten-foot pole and I don't think you are ready for it either."

Don Nelson, director of the Department for Planning echoed the thoughts of Mrs. Marxhausen by depicting what happened to the citrus industry in California.

"I don't like horror stories, but 20 years ago there were large areas of Southern California in citrus groves which was a major industry there. Today the area is all parking lots. I would venture to guess that no one farmer selling his land to a developer there ever envisioned the end of the citrus industry, but the collective decisions of all those farmers did just that," he said.

'Sticky Question'

Nelson said it was "a sticky question" to decide just where the rights of the land owner and the interest of the general public meet.

State Senator Loran Schmit of Bellwood suggested that the Agriculture Committee ought to hold meetings in several outstate areas for the purpose of gathering testimony from other people in the state and to educate the people about land use planning and laws related to land use.

Both Nelson and Mrs. Marxhausen supported the plan. Nelson suggested that "a lot of people might continue in farming if they could be protected from taxes that are in effect confiscating their land."

Sen. James Dickenson of Millard said "anytime you build a new home in eastern Nebraska you are probably taking some land from agricultural production, but just how do you say no, you can't build here because it is agricultural land."

Sen. Tom Kennedy of Newman Grove said "you have to provide some kind of price protection to the farmer if he is going to compete with developers for land. People won't stay on the farm when they keep losing money on crops and can make money by selling to a developer."

Police Seek Man Leaving Small Bomb

Kimball (AP) — Police are searching for a man who left a small bomb under the Highway 71 underpass Tuesday night.

Kimball police said a man called headquarters at 9:35 p.m. and told them where the bomb was located and to "be careful."

Police said they found a stick of dynamite with a fuse, and a cigarette burning down next to the fuse.

The FBI has entered the investigation.

Roof Truss Factory Set For Aurora

Omaha (AP) — Carlson Stapler and Shippers Supply Co. of Omaha will open a plant at Aurora to manufacture mobile home roof trusses and counter tops.

Vice President Chuck Farguson said the 10,000 square-foot existing building, initially will employ 10 persons when operations begin early in 1974. Ultimate employment probably will be 30.

The new facility, which will be operated by the firm's Carlson Components Division, replaces a smaller one at Elba.

Phone Service Is Still Reduced

Twenty-one southeastern Nebraska comminities were still minus long distance telephone service late Wednesday as the result of the previous day's wind-whipped ice and snow storm smacking south central and eastern Nebraska.

A spokesman for the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company said at least 1,000 poles and thousands of wires were broken in his company's southeast Nebraska territory.

Long distance service was restored Wednesday to Tecumseh, Hardy, Adams, Alexandria, Odell, Jansen, Elmwood and Murdock, the spokesman revealed.

Hundreds of rural telephone lines are also down, the LT&T reported, and are not expected to be repaired for several days.

The 21 communities without long distance service are Johnson, Virginia, Diller, Harbine, Plymouth, Filley, Douglas, Nehawka, Byron, DuBois, Elk Creek, Cook, Steinauer, Burchard, Crab Orchard, Burr, Pawnee City, Dawson, Humboldt, Sterling and Table Rock.

Meanwhile, the Nebraska Public Power District reported that as of Wednesday afternoon all towns served by NPPD had electric service, although some individual customers within the communities were still minus power.

A NPPD official said that at one time about 2,500 customers were without service Tuesday, in the Beatrice district. Ice-covered lines together with broken tree limbs were blamed for the outages.

Lester Trussell, manager of the Norris Public Power District at Beatrice, said it will take two or three more days to replace all the many poles broken in the district's five-county area. However, all power had been restored by early Wednesday.

Leaving Aid To Schools At Present Level Urged

Nebraska State School Boards Association members were urged Wednesday to ask Gov. J. James Exon to leave state aid to local schools at this year's level at least when he puts together budget recommendations for next year.

"I urge every school board and every board member to communicate to the governor your desire that state aid be included in his recommended budget at no less than the present level," said Leonard Lawrence of Bellevue, association president.

That includes, Lawrence said, not only the regular appropriation of $35 million a year but the additional $20 million appropriated separately from Nebraska's revenue sharing money.

The association president also said members should contact state senators and ask them to support such a move.

Lawrence noted Exon has indicated that because of the decision by the Republican majority on the State Equalization Board to lower the state income tax rate from his recommendation, local school aid might suffer.

"Since the 1974 income tax rate was reduced in November by the State Board of Equalization over his (Exon's) objections, the governor may find it difficult to include in his budget the $20 million that was added to state aid this year," he said.

Exon recommended next year's income tax rate be retained at 13%. But the State Equalization Board's three Republican members outvoted him and set the rate at 11%.

Tree Of Lights Drive Hits 35%

The Salvation Army Tree of Lights campaign reached 35% of its $25,000 goal Wednesday, according to Maj. Ross Zarfas.

Zarfas said that since Nov. 23, the Salvation Army has collected $8,725. The bell-ringing street corner collections will continue until Dec. 24.

The money will provide winter emergency relief, food, gifts and toys for low-income families, and gift packages for the inmates at the Nebraska Penal Complex and residents of area nursing homes, Zarfas said.

Dinner For H. Dyas May Gross $5,000

Ticket sales for the Hess Dyas appreciation dinner in Lincoln Saturday indicate a gross of about $5,000, Co-Chairman Vern Kohlof said Wednesday.

"It is not what we had hoped for, but it should get us through the primary," Kohlof said.

Dyas is expected to announce his candidacy for the Democratic congressional nomination shortly. He will resign his post as Democratic state chairman, thus leaving behind his present source of income.

The appreciation dinner will be held at Pershing Auditorium beginning at 7:30 p.m. Dyas will hold a news conference at 6:30 p.m., then attend a pre-dinner reception at the auditorium.

Gov. J. James Exon heads the list of dinner participants. Former Gov. Frank Morrison will serve as master of ceremonies.

Kohlof said Dyas supporters will need to "find other ways" to help the candidate meet his living expenses after the primary election, hoping to avoid indebtedness or large contributions from a few persons.

"People just are not familiar with the problem of helping a candidate meet his living expenses," Kohlof said.

Tickets will be sold at the doors of the auditorium for $25 each, Kohlof said.

Mrs. Hughes Will Leave Health Group

Former state Sen. Calista Cooper Hughes has confirmed she will leave her position as director of the state Comprehensive Health Planning Agency sometime in 1974.

She said it had been her goal to get comprehsneive health planning well established throughout Nebraska before stepping down.

"I believe we have a solid program today," she said.

Mrs. Hughes, of Humboldt, was appointed to the CHP post in 1969 by former Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann after she had been defeated in a bid to return to the Legislature, in which she served from 1965 to 1969.

In September of last year, Gov. J. James Exon placed the CHP agency under the state Health Department.

Poultry Honor Won By Shinn

A Dunning turkey grower credited with "applying business practices to develop one of the most successful turkey operations in Nebraska" has been named Nebraska poultryman of the year.

Richard D. Shinn was cited for statewide leadership to the Nebraska turkey industry, especially the Nebraska Turkey Growers Cooperative Association at Gibbon and the Norbest Turkey Growers Cooperative Association, a regional marketing cooperative.

Richard Shinn returned to the Dunning area following graduation from the University of Nebraska, and joined his father, "Dick" Shinn, in the large scale Shinn Turkey Ranch operation.

Doyle H. Free, general manager of Nebraska Poultry Industries, Inc., Lincoln, said Richard Shinn has contributed heavily of his time to state and national poultry organizational activities. He has been a director and president of the Nebraska Turkey Federation.

Free said through Shinn's efforts, "the Nebraska turkey industry has been modernized to the point it will meet the competition of growers in any other state in the nation."

Shinn was honored Wednesday night during the Nebraska Poultry Industries, Inc., annual convention.

Also given recognition were three individuals who were inducted into the Nebraska Poultry Hall of Fame for contributions to the state's poultry industry.

The three are Earle Boyd Smiley of Seward, James E. Anderson of Schuyler and Roy Brown of Blair.

Smiley is the longtime proprietor of a hatchery in Seward. Anderson was the Gland-O-Lac Poultry Products firm and more recently has worked for the I. D. Russell Co. of Kansas City, Mo. Brown is a former hatcheryman who has served as president of the Nebraska Poultry Improvement Association.

Nebraska Hall Names Eight To Membership

The Nebraska Hall of Agricultural Achievement has named eight persons to membership in the organization and re-elected its present slate of officers.

Willard H. Waldo of DeWitt was re-elected president; Arthur Carmody of Trenton, vice president; and Dr. A. W. Epp of Lincoln, secretary-treasurer. Henry Klosterman of David City was re-elected to a four-year term on the board of trustees.

Elected as new members to the Nebraska Hall are Wayne L. Campbell, Lodgepole; Dr. Paul Q. Guyer, Lincoln; Melvin O. Kuska, Fairmont; Donald L. Hovendick, Omaha; Hans Jensen, Aurora; Jack Maddux, Wauneta; Myron G. A. Rumery, North Platte; and Dr. Glen Vollmar, Lincoln.

The Nebraska Hall was organized in 1916 and maintains a membership of about 100 persons. Its objectives are "to gather and compile the history of achievements in agriculture in the state of Nebraska . . . to preserve and exhibit the records of these achievements and the portraits of the men and women who achieved them, in a permanent hall."

Portraits of 66 individuals honored to date by the Nebraska Hall, including that of former State Senator Willard Waldo, honored Dec. 3, are hung in the hall.

2 Omaha Families OK Omsteel Industries Sale

Omaha (AP) — Members of two long-time Omaha families have agreed to sell controlling interest in Omsteel Industries Inc., for $2,111,200, according to a letter sent to shareholders.

The sellers are members of the family of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Bucholz Sr., and Mrs. Christine H. Smith, widow of Fred K. Smith, and a son, F. Kirby Smith Jr. Young Smith is a former Omsteel president.

The buyer is a newly formed company, Omaha Steel Castings Co., headed by Bert J. Baines, longtime manager of what is generally regarded as the only successful part of Omsteel's operations, the foundry.

The company has sold all its production operations except those at the foundry as a result of Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings which have been underway since last January.

Falls City Armory Dedication Planned

Falls City — Dedication ceremonies will be held here Saturday afternoon and evening for Falls City's new National Guard Armory. The building was completed late this summer and has been in use by the Falls City detachment of Company B, 2nd battalion, 134th infantry for the past couple of months. Major General Francis L. Winner, adjutant-general for Nebraska will deliver the 2 p.m. address at the armory, followed by open house and tours of the facilities. A buffet dinner and dancing are planned for the evening.

Ragatz, Riggle Complete FBI Course

Washington (AP) — Two Nebraska law enforcement officials will graduate from the FBI National Academy for executive training of law officers Thursday. They are Edward M. Ragatz, detective with the Lincoln Police Department, and George V. Riggle Jr., detective with the Fremont Police Department. The two are among 250 law officers whose curriculum during the 12-week course included police ethics, management, administration, behavorial sciences, civil disturbances and legal matters.

Doane Groups To Give Concert

Crete — The Doane College concert band and Varsity Bagabonds will combine efforts and perform in concert Thursday, Dec. 13, at 7:30 p.m. The program, featuring jazz and rock music, will be held in the communications auditorium on the campus, and is open to the public, free of charge.

Two Dana Buildings Closing

Blair (UPI) — President Earl Mezoff of Dana College said Wednesday two campus buildings, Old Main, a classroom and faculty office building, and Argo Hall, women's residence, will be closed after Dec. 20 and re-opened later in the year as weather and fuel supplies dictate. Also announced was a change in the schedule for the interim and the opening of the second semester at Dana. Students will return to classes Jan. 14 rather than Jan. 7, as originally planned, saving some 12,000 gallons of fuel oil, Mezoff added.

Voters Reject Proposed New School

Sumner (AP) — School District 101-R voters in Sumner, Eddyville and Miller Tuesday rejected a $1,360,000 bond issue by a 309-179 vote. The bond issue would have financed a 22-classroom school for grades kindergarten through high school. Seventeen absentee ballots remain to be counted, but these would not affect the outcome.

Utilities Misleading Public, Peters Says

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The state's top fuel officer charged Wednesday that the utilities have been misleading the public with assurances of enough fuel this winter instead of apprising consumers candidly of the situation's gravity.

The fuel situation today is worse than it was two weeks ago, State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters told reporters, and yet the utilities, including Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Co., Northern Natural Gas Co., Nebraska Public Power District and Omaha Public Power District, are promising enough fuel this winter.

"A lot of people still are not anticipating trouble Peters said.

The utilities have not emphasized the interrelated nature of the energy crisis and that conservation of electricity also conserves diesel fuel and natural gas indirectly, he said.

The promises of sufficient fuel, Peters noted, apply only to priority users; nonpriority users will have their fuel supply interrupted. For instance, when a natural gas supplier interrupts the delivery of fuel to a power generating plant, the plant must turn to fuel oil for an energy supply.

The domino effect is a very real threat during the energy crisis, he said.

"Except for a few municipal power systems, all utilities have been misleading the public into thinking there is enough fuel," Goerge Dworak, Peters' special energy assistant, said.

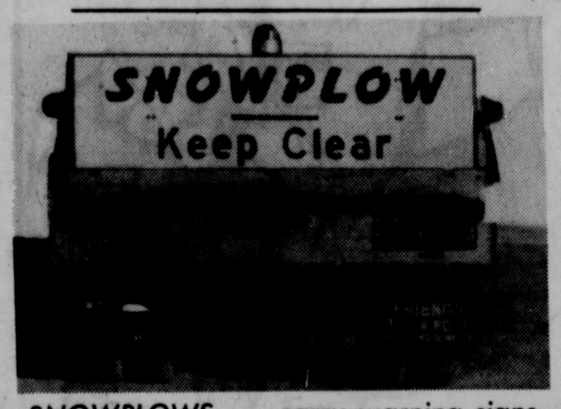
Peters added, "The situation today is worse. The companies are sending in less (fuel) than they did last month."

During the month of November, Peters said the fuel allocation office was able to direct $178,000 gallons of fuel to various users on the verge of running out. But he called that amount "a drop in the bucket" compared to what is needed.

Peters, who has decided to adopt a system used by Iowa for distributing hardship fuel, estimated that a proposed federal system using local allocation boards would cost in the neighborhood of $2 million to administer and would prove to be "a mess."

The cost would presumably be borne by the state, Peters said, since the federal government "hasn't paid for anything yet." The boards, scheduled to go into effect in late December, would assist in applications for increased fuel allotments and would approve waivers from restrictions.

The Iowa system, which involves dealing with 70 or 80 terminal fuel suppliers, was implemented in Nebraska Tuesday when Peters informed the suppliers that 7% of their fuel has been designated for a state reserve.



SNOWPLOWS . . . carry warning signs.

Official Urges Care To Pass Snowplow

Vehicles attempting to pass snowplows and sanders caused 47% of the collisions involving Department of Roads snow removal equipment last year.

Ken Sieckmeyer, director of safety for the Roads Department, said drivers don't realize that snow blowing off the snowplows can blind them for seconds. Sieckmeyer also said the ridge of snow left by the plows can be dangerous.

He said the plows travel at about 20 miles an hour and often have to back up, creating a rear-end collision hazard. The overall width of the plow is about 9 feet, Sieckmeyer said, but with an additional wing plow to clear highway shoulders, the plow may be as wide as 15 feet.

Sieckmeyer said all snow removal equipment has "snowplow" signs on the back of the trucks, and flashing lights.

He urged motorists to pass snowplows with patience, allowing plenty of distance between themselves and the equipment.

Liquor Fees, Tax Collections Up In November

The State Liquor Control Commission Wednesday reported it took in $843,745 in fees and taxes during November.

The commission said the month's revenue amounted to an increase over the $811,078 received during the same month last year.

The commission also said revenue totals for the year were ahead of last year with $8,489,041 received so far this year and $7,154,859 by the same time last year.

The November breakdown included: alcohol, spirits and wine taxes, $571,379; beer, $267,544; license fees, $851; registration fees, $96; shipper permits, $400; miscellaneous revenue, $3,474.

Zieman Challenges Service Of Summons By Fellow Deputy

Del Zieman, Lancaster County's chief deputy sheriff, sued last month by Lincoln Grain Co., filed a special appearance in Lancaster District Court this week objecting to the court's jurisdiction over him.

He listed as his reason the "improper service of the summons."

The summons was served by fellow Deputy Norman Monroe.

Survey Results Cite NU Needs

By MILAN WALL
and DON WALTON
Star Staff Writers

Most respondents to a survey undertaken by The Star point to improvement in the quality of university education in Omaha as the major accomplishment derived from creation of the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

"UNO is now a quality school," State Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln said.

See other stories, Pages 1, 13

"But we need more buildings on the campus, plus some salary adjustments to bring about more equality," Sate Sen. George Syas of Omaha said.

What has held UNO back, State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said, is "the influence of a few old ladies with money who think more about recreation than education" and stand in the way of land acquisition for the West Dodge campus.

Not only did the 1967 confederation with the University of Nebraska save "what could be a good institution" from financial starvation, former Gov. Norbert Tiemann said, but the action gives NU a campus in an urban center, thus broadening its educational horizons.

Money Said Needed

What has prevented the federated university system from reaching its full potential is "a lack of budget support," Tiemann said.

"Animosity between campuses . . . still must be overcome," Simpson said. University lobbyists "should quit trying to work one campus against the other and instead should be united in working equally for the entire system."

Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln said he fears that "individual kingdom builders on both the UNO and UNL campuses are still trying to justify their own selfish interests at the expense of a true systems operation."

Both Luedtke and Gov. J. James Exon pointed to a financial savings in capital construction costs at Lincoln as a result of the consolidation.

More dormitories and classroom facilities would have been needed to accommodate more students, including much larger numbers from Omaha itself, if the Municipal University of Omaha had closed, they said.

Wants Coordination

As for future savings, Exon said he wants to see more coordination and less duplication of administrative staff.

Carpenter wants UNO development held to the West Dodge campus.

"I am not in favor of splitting into two sites," he declared. "If they try to split the college, they will have a hell of a fight on their hands which could hurt for a long time.

"Acquire the land that is next to the present college — irrespective of the cost," Carpenter insisted.

UNO Faculty President Elton Carter said the institution should receive "a level of funding commensurate with its needs."

UNO needs "a model comparable to the agricultural table of organization" in Lincoln, he said, including research and extension in conjunction with teaching in an urban setting.

Federation
O.U. MERGER - YES!

Omahan Pleased

The 1967 confederation has resulted in "improved leadership, planning and overall coordination of public higher education in Nebraska," Omaha business leader Thomas Nurnberger said.

The university in Omaha now enjoys "increased stature," Omaha attorney Robert Spire said, and the change in tuition costs for UNO students has helped broaden educational opportunities in Omaha.

"Chief beneficiaries of the system have been the students on all campuses in the state," he said.

Creation of UNO gives Omahans "a better understanding of state higher education problems," Omaha business leader Willis Strauss said. It also provides "the opportunity for more Nebraskans to obtain a higher education," he noted.

There is now "a wider base of quality higher education in Nebraska," Lincoln banker Paul Amen said, but further improvements are justified at UNO.

"Now we need additional financial support for the total university," he said.

'Cannot Afford Two . . .'

While the confederation has "given more students an opportunity for a better education," Lincoln insurance executive George Cook said, "it is certain that Nebraska cannot afford two complete state-financed universities with all the various undergraduate and graduate programs that might be desired."

Thus, Cook stressed, there should be a well-defined role — with appropriate curriculum — for each campus.

NU Regent Robert Raun of Minden said the overriding achievement of the 1967 action is "improvement in the quality of the university education offered in the largest city of the state."

UNO has "taken on new stature," Grand Island banker Richard E. Spelts Jr., noted, "and this is very meaningful to graduates when they seek employment."

'Different Roles'

But, he said, "the education role of UNL and UNO should continue to be different" since they are serving "a different group of students" for often differing purposes.

Spelts fears the UNO administration is "pushing very hard to create two identical, duplicate educational institutions under one umbrella located in two different communities."

Actually, he suggested, there my be "too many" institutions of higher learning in Nebraska when one considers its population and potential growth.

Emphasis is overdue in technical education, he said.

Governing Body Change Proposed

and DON WALTON
Star Staff Writers

Replacement of the Board of Regents as the governing body of the University of Nebraska with a broadly based "Constituent Assembly" has been proposed by Lincoln Faculty Senate President Wallace Peterson.

But Peterson stressed that his proposal is a personal recommendation, not a Faculty Senate proposition, and that it is not intended to be critical of current regents.

Rather, he suggested, "a more broadly based body representing the public as well as the other constituent parts of the university might be a more effective instrument for the immediate governance of the university."

The Constituent Assembly would be modeled after NU's Governance Commission which recently created a new set of university by-laws.

The work of that 35-member commission, representative of faculty, students, administrators and regents, "demonstrated that a body of this size and composition could undertake and complete successfully the complicated task of designing the basic governing constitution for such a large and complex entity as the University of Nebraska system," Peterson said.

'Lay Board Outdated'

"In my judgment, the system of governing a modern complex university by a part-time lay board — whether elected or appointed — may have outlived its historical usefulness.

". . . there is a need to find a new mode of governance. The fact that there is some desire to provide token representation to students on the present Board of Regents attests to this."

The question at issue, he suggested, is "whether or not the present governing arrangement is obsolete."

Establishment of a Constituent Assembly as a new governmental form for systems

Federation
O.U. [illegible] - YES!

of higher education "would enable Nebraska to make an imaginative and unique contribution to a complex problem that is national in its scope," Peterson said.

Peterson also suggested creation of a "Council of the University," consisting of elected members of the faculty from the three NU campuses, assisting the NU System president and his staff is in advisory and policy-making capacity.

"A strong feeling now exists that the distance between the faculty and the higher echelons of the university is so great that there is no systematic and continued faculty input into the decision-making process of the system," he said.

Leadership 'Remote'

Many faculty members view the new NU System unit as "an excessively complex and hierarchical — not to say centralized — adminstrative structure" whose leadership is often seen as "remote and increasingly out of touch with the views, the feelings and the wishes of the faculty," Peterson said.

"Within the faculty there seem to be a widespread — and growing — feeling that administration — not education and scholarship — has become the most important business of the university."

Creation of the University of Nebraska at Omaha and the subsequent designation of the Medical Center as a separate entity have fragmented NU, Peterson said.

And, he said, it seems to have "opened the door to much more direct involvement than heretofore by the Legislature into the internal affairs of the institution.

"Such involvement — as in recent controversies over the location of the College of Engineering and the pressure for some kind of a branch establishment of the university at the Hiram Scott properties in Scottsbluff — is based more on political expediency than sound educational policy and planning.

"I fear more, rather than less, of this in the future."

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Christmas card time again. Writer's cramp. Snow storms of mail in the post office.

Christmas cards are the social status of our times. I don't mean the assorted pack from the drugstore. I mean the tailor-mades.

Mine cost $68 — or some such elegant figure this year. Last year they were $40. Ten years ago they were $20. And I don't have that many new friends.

The cards are handsome. I run to Dickens type cards. Snow and fireplaces. Children and sleds. Our name is on them in raised letters — you could read them with your fingertips blindfolded.

Be careful you don't cut your fingers on my Christmas cards.

Brisk and bright evening around here. The carillon in the church chimes Christmas music into the night. Each note is full and frosted.

How many shopping days until Christmas, sir?

Why, that is a world of time, my good man. Don't rush me. (The type who winds up Christmas eve at the drugstore. "Quick, give me a fifth of perfume. Gift-wrapped.")

Americans send each other two-and-a-half billion Christmas cards. The cost of remembering auld acquaintances runs $300 million. Uncle Sugar's extra mailmen get another $100 million.

The average card costs 18 cents. People who send me 14-centers and get one of my 27-centers in return are status deflated.

Merry Christmas, friend. I have just let the air out of your status.

It is a bugging time of the year.

"Look at this!" says the lady of the house. "You'd think they were millionaires sending out a card like this. And their poor little boy running around in patched pants!"

"The Lord loveth a cheerful giver," said my grandma. And we are certainly cheerful when we send out a 27-center and compare it with a 20-center we get in return.

If we get a 35-center, we are not so cheerful.

"Don't you think all that gold leaf is a little — well, too much?" we say.

The pople who send you a card, and you didn't send them one. We hedge that with a New Year's card and a note. "We were so busy planning a Christmas ski trip, I was late with Christmas cards. You know how it is."

You know how it is, don't you? Of course you do.

As Christmas cards come in, we stick them on the wall. The gorgeous 50-centers go in the middle.

We don't approve of them. But it shows we have wealthy friends.

It is important to put up the cards of people who may be visiting your home over Christmas. They look over the display — "How pretty!" But they are really looking to see where you put their card.

Stick a couple of foreign cards in the middle. It lets you throw away a line: "A charming couple who asked us out on their yacht in Greece. Great friends of Ari's. Always borrowing a cup of fuel oil from each other."

Having shopped Christmas cards, we are aware to the penny what other people's cards cost.

"Will you look at the cards the Jones's sent this year?" asks the lady of the house. "I saw with my own eyes that they were listed at $80 a hundred."

"Probably all that gold on them," agrees the master.

"Next year," says the lady, "I think we won't send any cards at all. Just call our closest friends on the telephone and wish them a Merry Christmas."

"For heaven's sake, what brought this on?" he asks.

The lady says angrily: "George, sometimes I think you don't listen to a word I say."

"Let's have a Christmas buzz," says George. "Where's the gin?"

Survey: Faith In Executive Branch Slips

By LOUIS HARRIS

Confidence in the leadership of most of the nation's key institutions has risen in the past year, the conspicious exception being the executive branch of the federal government. The number of Americans who say they feel "a great deal of confidence" in the latter has slipped from 27% to 19%.

Although Congress and the U.S. Supreme Court have increased somewhat in public esteem during the past 12 months, barely one in three Americans rates the remaining two branches of government at the top of the scale. And all of the institutions tested, except television news and the press, are still well below the confidence levels recorded for them back in 1966.

In a year of controversy and confrontation the mass media increased their confidence rating significantly. Even so, less than a majority is willing to accord them "a great deal of confidence."

A cross section of 1,594 adult Americans was asked in between Sept. 13 and 22:

"How much confidence do you feel in the people who are running (read list) — a great deal, only some, or hardly any confidence?"

CONFIDENCE IN LEADERSHIP OF KEY INSTITUTIONS

Great Deal of Confidence:
Medicine	57	48	72
Higher education	44	33	61
Television news*	41	17	25
Military	40	35	62
Religion	36	30	41
U.S. Supreme Court	33	28	51
Press	30	18	29
U.S. Senate	30	21	42
Major companies	29	27	55
U.S. House of Rep.	29	21	42
Labor	20	15	22
Fed Exec. Branch	19	27	41

*Previously asked about "television"

The sharpest rise upward in the past year has been recorded by the media, both television and the press. The main reason for this sizable increase in confidence is the widely held view on the part of 63% of the public that "disclosures about corruption in government would not have happened if it had not been for newspapers and television news."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Thursday

Add to Astrology Hall of Fame: Edward A. Wagner, Carl Payne Tobey, Manly Palmer Hall, Louis De Wohl, Blanca Holmes, Cedric Lemont and Nella Webb. The list is long and I will, from time to time, continue to add to it. One name I do not want to overlook is John J. O'Neill, a Pulitizer Prize-winning science editor who wrote me a historic letter on astrology, following one of my debates with astronomer Roy K. Marshall, who had implied that O'Neill really did not accept astrology. O'Neill verified my claim and went on to state that, "Astrology is one of the most important fields for scientific research today . . ."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If flexible, you could take advantage of money opportunity. Accent is on adding to personal possessions. Sagittarius, Gemini persons could play key roles. Look beyond the immediate. Invest in what you feel is valid.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle high; move ahead by taking initiative. Be independent in thought, action. Wear bright colors. Now is time to draw attention to yourself. Shake off fear, doubts. Review fundamentals. You will make valuable contact.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): One who seems aloof will attempt to open area of communication. Be receptive without revealing all you know. Discretion now can be valuable ally. Virgo person is likely to be in picture. Be ready for significant change of pace.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent is on friends, desires, income derived from business, profession. You may be making decision regarding home, domestic situation. Gifts and diet sprees seem to be highlighted. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may be at cross-purposes with yourself. Know it and reexamine motives, goals. Emphasis is on responsibility, achievement and aspirations. Professional superior is stborn. But you won't win by arguing. Pisces may be in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good lunar aspect coincides now with journeys, correspondence, spiritual evaluation. You feel aware. You know what is expected. You assume responsibility. You also may be investing in potential rather than the immediate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you delve beneath surface, you may find that you are willing to give up what you once thought was precious. You grasp subtle truth about one close to you — and about yourself. Pull reins where money is flowing nonstop.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis is on public relations, how you present yourself, your product, your dream. Vitality returns. What seemed lost can be recovered. Permit yourself the vision of a child. See new. See in untrammeled way. See in your own way. Be you!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hunch illuminates puzzle. You see way out. You teach and learn. There is productive exchange. Aquarius may play important role. Work, health, essentials and routine — these are featured. Don't ask for miracle, but expect one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Favorable lunar aspect coincides now with love, creativity, relations with young persons. You are able to express in way that increases popularity. You reach more people. You communicate in meaningful manner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Concentrate on the basics. Build on solid foundation. You will be opposed — and appreciated. You receive proper credit along with lovely criticism. Leo and Scorpio persons play roles. Older family member has a definite say.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent in on the close range, the quick concept, the ideas as opposed to working philosophy. You tend now to be impulsive, impatient and quick to judge. Despite premature actions, you probably will come out smelling like a rose.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sense of drama, an impressive voice, a way of winning your way with opposite sex. You will do more traveling in 1974, and May probably will be your outstanding month. You are frank, truthful, persuasive. You enjoy teaching. You are intrigued with politics, law and theater.

Schmit: Talks May Lead To Grain Alcohol Plant

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said Wednesday negotiations are underway which, if successful, could mean construction of a grain alcohol plant at Sutherland.

Schmit also told United Press International that he has requested federal money to be invested in the plant — the same money that has been allocated to help find ways of getting out of the tight energy situation.

To use the federal energy money, the senator said, would only make sense under the circumstances.

"I think it would be totally inconsistent if we don't," he said. "Here we are looking under rocks for fuel and here's a source right under our nose."

The idea of having an alcohol plant in production in Nebraska was an offshoot of a law passed by the Unicameral in 1971.

The law called for a research program on the feasibility of using grain alcohol as both a substitute for lead additives to gasoline and as a gasoline extender.

'Time Has Come'

"The time for this idea has come and I think we, as public officials, are crazy if we don't carry it on through," Schmit said.

An alcohol blended fuel, using a 10% mix, could take pressure off gasoline supplies, therefore providing more heating oil and diesel fuel, he said.

Schmit also said that if a blended gasoline doesn't take enough pressure off existing supplies, there are other possibilities.

"If it has to be, we could develop an engine to burn nothing but alcohol," he said.

The negotiations Schmit spoke of are in progress between the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) and the Midwest Solvents Co. of Atchison, Kan. Midwest solvents has a plant in operation at Atchison, but has indicated a strong expansion interest.

The subject of the negotiations is the use of steam from NPPD's Gentlemen Station now under construction at Sutherland in alcohol production.

"We could save $1 million by not having to put in boilers," Schmit said.

As to the agency that the 1971 law created, the so-called Gasohol Committee, the senator said he has been informed the committee will be getting $100,000 in research funds later this month.

The committee itself, however, has not been in operation since last summer when the Attorney General's Office said the agency didn't have any money of its own due to a technicality in the appropriation process.

But some research efforts have been continued using outside money until the Legislature goes into session next year and clears away the technicalities standing between the committee and its money.

River Barge Hit By Falling Auto

Joliet, Ill. (AP) — James E. Rudder's car collided with a river barge recently.

Rudder, 29, of Romeoville drove his car through warning gates at a drawbridge over the Des Plaines River, sheriff's deputies reported.

They said his car dropped through the gap left by the open bridge and fell 15 to 20 feet onto a barge carrying heating oil.

Rudder received only minor injuries. He was ticketed for reckless driving and failure to reduce speed.

Bird Count Is Scheduled For Dec. 16

This news is strictly for the birds.

The Lincoln Audubon Naturalists Club is inviting "birders" to help in the club's annual Christmas bird count.

Dr. Norma G. Johnson of 1204 Idylwild Drive, president of the club, said the Lincoln count set for Dec. 16 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. is one of the nation-wide counts made under the auspices of the National Audubon Society.

Last year, she said, more than 1,000 counts were made across the country during the last two weeks in December.

The area designated for the Lincoln count is a 15-mile diameter circle, with the center at South Coddington & A Streets.

Dr. Johnson said non-club members are welcome to participate, noting inexperienced birders "who want to learn can go along and help" those with experience.

All birders will be assigned a specific area in the circle, Dr. Johnson said. "We don't want people to go out willy-nilly."

She said the purpose of the count is to determine the total number of birds in the area and the number of species.

She also encouraged Lincolnites who have bird feeders in their yards to count the number of birds and species they see on Dec. 16 and to mail the information to her to include in the count.

Danes Oust Social Demos At The Polls

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — When the ruling Social Democrats proposed doing away with tax writeoffs on house mortgages and credit buying, it was the last straw.

The electorate revolted in Tuesday's general election, throwing out one-third of the old faces who have taken turns governing Denmark since 1945.

In their place, the voters swept in new people on promises of abolishing income tax, dismantling welfare bureaucracy and handcuffing the influential Marxist minority.

Prime Minister Anker Joergensen, his Social Democrat party resoundingly defeated, went to Queen Margrethe on Wednesday with his resignation. The queen meets Thursday with 10 party leaders — twice as many as before the election — to begin the lengthy business of forming a government.

Joergensen's party remained the country's largest party, but its share of the total vote fell from 37.3 per cent in 1971 to 25.7 per cent. It dropped from 70 legislative seats to 46.

Kempe Draws Musical Plum

London (AP) — German Maestro Rudolf Kempe has drawn one of the Britain's musical plums. He was named Wednesday as principal conductor of the British Broadcasting Corp.'s symphony orchestra, to succeed France's Pierre Boulez in September, 1975.

A tall, commanding figure with gray hair, the 63-year-old Kempe is one of the best loved figures in London music circles. He resigned only two months ago from the Royal Philharmonic, after 12 years.

Kempe will conduct 30 concerts a year for the BBC, with Boulez as his associate conductor.

Britain Limits Speed

London (AP) — The British government ordered a compulsory 50 mile-an-hour speed limit on all roads to combat worsening fuel shortages.

Extra care in engineering...it makes a big difference in small cars.

Which small cars
–have more trunk space than 3 Pintos
–have 20"more total hiproom than Maverick
–can save you as much as $62 in ignition maintenance alone
–are priced lower than Volkswagen's most popular model
–and can go farther on a gallon of gas than Nova?

These small cars from Chrysler Corporation are the answer.

Small cars are not created equal.

A lot of people seem to think that all small cars are sluggish, cramped and plain, and have tiny trunks. Naturally, they also think that you just have to put up with these inconveniences if you want to enjoy the handling and economy advantages of a small car.

But that's not the case at all. Forget the stereotype and take a look at these two Chrysler Corporation small cars—Plymouth Duster and Dodge Dart Sport. They not only give you what you want in a small car, but a lot of things you'd expect only in a big car.

For example, they're all surprisingly roomy. Dart Sport and Duster seat 5 comfortably. And they have more hiproom—front and rear—than Maverick, Nova, Hornet and, of course, Mustang II, Gremlin, Vega and Pinto.

Fuel economy. But not at the expense of performance.

Recently published test results by Popular Science show our "Slant Six" engine can go farther on a gallon of gas than Nova, and you get a "Slant Six" engine standard in all our small cars. That means you get power for passing and acceleration. What's more, this "Slant Six" engine gives you more miles per gallon than other comparable size small cars like Maverick, Comet, Ventura and Apollo.*

A trunk, not a cubbyhole.

Another thing that steers some people away from small cars is luggage space. What good is an economy car on a long trip if you can't take your luggage with you?

When you see the trunks on Plymouth Duster and Dodge Dart Sport, you won't believe they're small cars. We have the largest luggage capacity, by far, in the small-car field. More than Nova and Maverick, twice as much as Vega and more than three times as much as Pinto. And that's real, honest-to-goodness, locked-in-the-trunk space. Not on the roof, not behind the seat, but in the trunk. Out of sight and out of the way.

Economy, plain or fancy.

Many people also feel that economy cars are too plain. That you can't dress them up. Well, on our small cars, you can get many of the options available on our big ones.

You can tailor your car to your specific needs by adding as many of the options as you really want. Power steering. Disc brakes. Automatic transmission. Air conditioning. Custom seats and trim. Electrically heated rear window defroster. Even a sliding sun roof and folding rear seat are available.

Small cars. But big on engineering.

Something else you get with our small cars is the following list of engineering features—which are standard on every Chrysler Corporation car built in this country.

- Electronic ignition for up to 35% more starting voltage than conventional systems.
- Unibody construction and torsion-bar suspension.
- Reduced maintenance. There are no ignition points or condenser to replace. Spark plugs last up to 18,000 miles under normal driving conditions.

So, in terms of recommended ignition maintenance alone, you can save up to $62.00 every 24,000 miles over competitive 6-cylinder engines and up to $27.00 over competitive 4-cylinder engines.

Price: The economy feature you care about most.

By now, we think you'll agree that nobody packs more features and value into a small car than Chrysler Corporation. And, ordinarily, you'd expect to pay more to get more. Not necessarily so.

See your Dodge and Chrysler-Plymouth dealer. You'll be surprised how little it costs to own one of their small cars. The suggested retail price is less than Volkswagen's most popular model, believe it or not.†

Plymouth Duster, Dodge Dart Sport. Try these small cars from Chrysler Corporation at your Dodge and Chrysler-Plymouth dealer's today.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Grandma Inundates Them With Pastries

By ROBERT PETERSON

Q. — "What do you do with a grandma who inundates you with baked goods? My mother-in-law is a lovely person but hasn't got enough to do. Her chief hobby is baking pastries but who needs them? My husband and I are on diets, and we don't like our children to eat sweets. Yet Grandma, who lives across town, sends over a box of cookies, a tray of tarts, or a big coffee cake every Monday afternoon like clockwork. We've told her time and again not to do this, but she thinks we're just trying to spare her the work. We used to give the cookies and cakes away but this is such a nuisance. What can we do?"

A. — Your husband must tell his mother firmly that she's to make no more pastries for you because of your problems with diets and sweets. Since baking gives her so much pleasure, you should then find a local nursing home or residence for elders which will welcome these sweets. Introduce your mother to these folks and hopefully she'll soon be as interested in baking for them as she has been baking for you.

Q. — "My wife and I are in our mid-50s, with a son still in his teens. I work for the pipeline and my wife brings in a little income from part-time work as a waitress. I hate my job and everything else about this town, and find myself dreaming all the time about retiring and moving to some place out in the country where I can just huts, fish and be lazy if I want to. My wife says she's willing to do anything that will make me happy. If we sell the equity in our house and cash in all our chips we'll have a total of about $25,000, plus our car. Do you think we could actually retire on this?"

A. — You could survive, provided you could adjust to a very simple life and were willing to take part-time work occasionally. That sum invested at six per cent would give you about a hundred dollars to keep the wolf from the door. In a few years you'd presumably be eligible for Social Security. Those retiring on tight budgets usually start off by buying a used trailer or mobile home. By taking your living quarters in tow behind your car you could probably locate some rural area in the hinterlands where you could settle down and live at very low cost. Such a life would offer you a much lower standard of living than you're accustomed to but it might give you the leisure and freedom which many imaginative people find more important than tiled baths and two-car garages.

Q. — "Please stop using that stupid label 'senior citizen.' I'm 74 and can outwork youngsters half my age and am not ready to be patronized by you or anyone else. Don't call me an old man, eigher. Just call me an older person."

A. — The folks who invented "senior citizen" probably thought they were being kind. But judging from my mail it rubs about one-fourth of the elder citizenry the wrong way. There aren't many synonyms in the dictionary. Nobody likes "old man" or "old woman." The words "elderly" and "aged" suggest frailty, and no one including Whistler's Grandmother would approve of "antiquated," "superannuated" or "ancient." After considering all these, don't you think "senior citizen" sounds pretty nice?

Single Parents Are Becoming Rule Rather Than Exception

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

"Single parent families are becoming the rule" rather than the exception, observed Dr. Fredrick C. Green of Washington, D.C.

But he sees the trend as a "healthy move" from concern with the structure of the family to that of the functional capabilities of the family where the quality of the love, interest and affection displayed toward the child is becoming more important than the quantity.

"Working mothers can put that quality into three to four hours," Dr. Green said, adding that no woman can be a perfect mother all day, every day.

DR. GREEN . . . answers questions

The pediatrician, associate director of the Children's Hospital National Medical Center, Office of Child Health Advocacy, in the nation's capital, was in Lincoln Wednesday to present the keynote address at the Nebraska Conference on the Special Needs of School-Age Parents.

"Our young people are in trouble," Dr. Green said referring to the staggering statistics relating to adolescent parenthood. An estimated 210,000 live births occur each year to young women 19 years of age and under. That means that 10% of the age category will have babies before their 20th birthday. In Nebraska, one in seven live births annually are to school-age girls.

Although 60% of the young pregnant women are married before they give birth, and 50-85% of the marriages in that age group are as the result of adolescent pregnancies, only one-half of those marriages survive the fifth anniversary.

Whether they marry or not, more and more pregnant teenagers are opting to keep their babies. This is a reflection of societal changes as a whole, Dr. Green pointed out. Fifteen years ago, most young women put their babies up for adoption.

Not only are those young persons thus raising their children virtually alone, but there are many other consequences of adolescent pregnancy, Dr. Green pointed out.

There are social consequences, economic consequences, medical consequences and educational consequences.

That most young women, for whatever reason, fail to continue their education, has Dr. Green particularly concerned. So does the fact that they are "ostracized . . . stigmatized" banned from certain extracurricular activities if and when they do remain in school.

He considers that on the "outer reach of absurdity.

"A young person without a high school education in the future will find it more and more difficult to be productive, Dr. Green said. It's coming to the point where the same can be said of college, he added.

"In Europe, we are prepared for life in high school and for a profession in college; in the United States, we are prepared for life in college and prepared for a profession in graduate school."

Admitting that high schools are becoming more responsive and acceptable to society, the pediatrician said great strides remain to be taken.

"Reproductive biology as it is taught in the schools explores the outer limits of incompetency," he said. Certain skills are required for teaching such a personal subject, including the lack of hang-ups and biases plus being able to communicate freely and openly.

It should be more than sex education, he said. It should teach "human sexuality . . . what it means to be a man, what it means to be a woman, and also enhance parenting capability."

To facilitate this change, Dr. Green, while employed by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, was instrumental in establishing an Education for Parenthood course which was initiated on a trial basis in 226 school districts across the country this fall. Lincoln High School has such a class.

It is "a total program" including child care, child development, budgeting, and the dissemination of birth control information. At least 25% of those enrolled in the course must be males, because, said Dr. Green, "the lack of male involvement (in such areas) is almost sexually stereotyped."

Delaware Project Serves 1,300

The State of Delaware is using some of its revenue sharing funds from the federal government to assist teenage parents and parents-to-be.

Called the Delaware Adolescent Program, Inc., (DAPI, for short), it is the only state-wide program of its kind in the nation and the only one funded by a state legislature. Revenue-sharing and matching federal funds, also are part of the project's $300,000 annual budget.

The program presents a comprehensive package of pre-and post-natal care for adolescent mothers, as well as educational, medical, social, and day care services beneficial to young mothers and fathers alike.

Its administrative director, Lulu Mae Nix, will describe her state's program during a panel discussion Thursday at the Nebraska Conference on the Special Needs of School-Age Parents.

The project has served 1,300 young women in three county centers since its inception five years ago.

It is not a live-in center, but operates from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily. The infant day care center enables the mothers to continue their educations or hold jobs. A two-year follow-up period is conducted on each client leaving the center. All services are free of charge except hospital care.

The Delaware Adolescent Program will be one of several out-of-state services for teenage parents to be described at the conference as local, regional and state agency representatives search for "the ideal program for young parents in the areas of health, social services, education, day care, mental health and nursing services."

State Sen. Shirley Marsh is coordinator of the state-wide conference.

Showers Honor Miss Brown

Six pre-nuptial showers have been held or are planned for Miss Buff Ann Brown who will marry Kevin A. Denning, Dec. 22.

Mrs. Wesley Torrens, Mrs. Robert Spoonhour and Mrs. William McGrew, all of Fremont, were hostesses for a shower, Oct. 28.

A Nov. 4 shower was hosted by Mrs. M. M. Dritley, and Mrs. Cleo Schroeder, both of Fremont.

Mrs. John Morton was hostess for a tea and shower, Nov. 11. And on Nov. 24 Miss Sydney Whitehead and her mother, Mrs. M. E. Whitehead were hostesses for a shower.

The couple was also honored Dec. 1 at a couple shower given by Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Kiburz.

A final shower at the Alpha Xi Delta sorority house is planned for Dec. 12 with Mrs. Jeff Bell and Miss Paula Grant, as hostesses.

Protect Decorations

Protect your holiday decorations from damage by insects. Beetles, weevils or any insects that infest stored grain may find their way into holiday decorations. Fumigation is recommended when insects are found inside nuts and pine cones. For wreaths and Christmas trees, a heavy plastic bag containing moth nuggets or moth crystals, not moth balls, can be placed over the object. Set in a warm place, and after three or four days, take the wreath or tree and shake it outdoors. This will remove dead insects and further shaking will also remove live ones.

These Party Tips Can Help Save Lives

Although not in line with the ordinary rules of etiquette, the Lincoln Alcohol Safety Action Project offers hosts and hostesses a few party tips in the hope that tragedy will not be a part of this year's holiday festivities.

The purpose of the holiday advice is to suggest that party givers be concerned with not only hospitality and the success of the parties, but also the safety of their guests and others in the community.

Party tips suggested by James Shelley, Acting Project Director included providing guests with a choice of non-alcoholic beverages for those who prefer not to indulge in alcoholic drinks; serving food one hour before the party ends.

From Dec. 10-14, the Project will sponsor an "A.Q." (Alcohol Quotient) Machine in the Gateway Gallery Mall.

'Teen Parents Voice Problems

Discrimination Is Common

Discriminatory attitudes of school administrators and teachers, attitudes which eventually lead to interruption and, often, to termination of high school educations was the primary concern voiced by five young persons and young parents who addressed the Nebraska Conference on the Special Needs of School-Age Parents Wednesday.

Sherry, who was a freshman when she became pregnant, said, "I wanted to go to school even if I was pregnant." However a homebound program was forced upon her at that time.

Roxane, who was a junior at an Omaha school and quite active in extracurricular activities, said that school officials wanted her name removed from a slate of queen candidates upon learning that she had a child. Despite her problems then, she now is working towards a master's degree in social work and is a probation officer in Lincoln.

Mary was a high school sophomore when she became pregnant. She said school officials not only forced her to quit school but also discouraged her from taking correspondence courses.

That is just a sampling of the prejudicial attitudes the young persons have encountered.

Darrel and his wife were married when they were just 16. She was pregnant, so he dropped out of school to earn a living for his family. He also took adult education courses. But they ran into difficulties when seeking welfare assistance.

Sharon had just graduated from a Lincoln high school when she discovered she was pregnant. After the baby was born, she sought employment but, despite her high scores on a state test, was told that she couldn't be hired because she was in unwed mother, that the "women in this office would run you out." However, the baby's father (whom she did not marry) found no difficulty in being employed by the Lincoln Police Department.

In addition to discrimination in education, services, and employment, the young parents also indicated difficulties in finding low income housing and in obtaining information about currently available services.

While most of the panelists said they received adequate parental support, it was pointed out that this is not always the case.

"It's not the kids who have problems with adolescent pregnancy, but their parents," commented Jo Doris Bragg, Lincoln Action Program's economic development specialist, who served as one of the moderators.

Ron Sylvester, family life educator from Scottsbluff, the other moderator, agreed, but he also saw the schools as playing a major role in providing necessary services to all young persons.

Schools recently have adopted the teaching of values, he observed, but the educational systems "don't put human sexuality on the level of human values."

Teen Kicked Habit

DEAR ABBY: Today I am celebrating, but I don't want to do it alone, so I'm writing to you. What am I celebrating? Well, I have been off drugs for six months, and I think that's worth something. Maybe it's because I don't need to steal or run away from home anymore that makes me so happy. Quitting drugs was the hardest thing I've ever done in my life, but the most rewarding.

I'd like to pay tribute to the teacher who helped me do this. I won't mention his name, but he was the one person who never looked at his watch during all the hours he spent with me. My parents helped a lot. I really thought I hated them, but I now realize it was the things I was doing that I hated. I love my parents, and I want them to know that.

I want everyone to know how much I love life now, and how much I love God.

Six months going on 60 years, because I know I will never go back.

Please print this. There is so much in it I could never have the courage to say out loud. Maybe this will help someone else.

By the way, I'm 15 years old.

"ANOTHER LEAF"

DEAR LEAF: Congratulations! I'm sorry you didn't send me your name and address. I would have enjoyed sending you a modest but meaningful present.

DEAR ABBY: My family is just about ready to break up over this problem, which may not have a solution. Maybe you can tell me if I am in the wrong.

My husband and two partners have two establishments which they call "Health Studios." But they are really massage parlors which employ pretty young girls who massage men, and you can imagine what other services they sell.

Abby, we have three school-age children who have come home in tears because of what the kids at school are saying about their father.

I have begged my husband to get out of that business and go back to selling, but he says he's making good money and will stay with it as long as he can.

When my husband was a salesman he didn't make as much money, but it was respectable, and we were happy. Am I wrong?

RATHER HAVE LESS IN OHIO

DEAR RATHER: No, But don't give your husband an ultimatum unless you're prepared to leave him.

DEAR ABBY: Our problem is kind of touchy, familywise. Every Sunday we go to a relative's house for dinner. We enjoy these visits, but they are on an organic food kick, and that is all they serve.

This means lots of tasteless, unseasoned food, and no meat at all. The dinners they serve may be appetizing to them, but not to us.

They are aware that we do not follow their organic diet at home. Would we be considered rude if we brought our own meals after this?

MEAT EATERS

DEAR MEAT EATERS: You know your relatives better than I do. If you think they would be offended, tell them you will skip dinner, and join them afterwards.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I was in a drug store when a woman, who appeared to be about 60, came in grumbling about her "old age."

The druggist, a good friend of mine, pointed to me, and said: "This old gent is 87, and he seems to be doing all right."

The woman asked me how I did it, and I replied: "I don't smoke or drink. I attend church regularly and never fool around with more than one woman at a time."

She looked me in the eye, and asked: "Mister, what do you do for fun?"

I told her that I wandered through graveyards and copied unusual inscriptions from the tombstones. It's true, but I'm sure she didn't believe me.

Father Changed Sex, But Family Stayed Together

Plainfield, N.J. — It was a day much like any other day in the life of Mrs. Paula Grossman. A hormone shot at the doctor's. A lunch of three hot dogs at Opdyke's Charcoal Grill, her favorite roadside restaurant. A trip to a country market to buy 15 dozen eggs wholesale.

Then the 54-year-old Mrs. Grossman drove home, to the rambling white house built in 1885, to a wife who sometimes inadvertently calls her "Paul," and three daughters who still call her "dad."

Paul Miriam Grossman, nee Paul Monroe Grossman, is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 223 pounds and has short graying hair worn in a no-nonsense Mamie Eisenhower style. She is also one of the very few of the estimated 3,000 transexuals in this country who has chosen to remain with her family.

Unlike most patients who have had the sex change operation Mrs. Grossman, whose operation was performed by a private doctor in New York in April, 1971, immediately returned to her family and says she has been happily married ever since.

"There have been no emotional problems," Mrs. Grossman said. "Or at least none that I've been able to detect. There has been a strain, a strain on all of us. But as far as the general image of a family going haywire and running pell mell to a psychiatrist, it just hasn't happened. No one in this family goes to a shrink."

Mrs. Grossman said that before her sex change operation took place, she had offered her wife a divorce. But, according to Mrs. Grossman, her wife refused.

"Ruthie never wanted a divoree, she never wanted one for a minute," Mrs. Grossman said. "We love each other very much — we're friends. Psychologically, we still have a husband-wife relationship. And we're still legally married, for as long as we live, unless one of us, or one of our children, contests the marriage."

Mrs. Grossman received nationwide publicity in the summer of 1971 after she was dismissed from her job as an elementary music teacher at the Cedar Hill School in Bernards Township, N.J.

Mrs. Grossman, a teacher for 31 years had taught there as a man for 14 years and had asked the school board if she could return that fall as a woman. The board refused, saying she would have a "negative impact" on the students.

Meanwhile, Ruth Grossman is supporting the family by working as a legal secretary here. Paula Grossman earns some money now and then by lecturing on transsexualism and by gigs at local roadhouses, where she sings such old favorites as "Heart of My Heart" and "Shine on, Harvest Moon."

"It's been rough financially," she admitted.

In many ways — and in the traditional sense of the word — Paula Grossman is extremely feminine. She is pround of her impressive bustline, a result of her monthly hormone shots.

But many of the masculine characteristics still remain: The bone-crushing hand-shake, the thick neck and shoulders, the deep voice, the salty language, the beard (she rejected electrolysis because she thought other transsexuals who had had it looked like "smallpox victims"), the love of motor cycles, the civil war and guns.

The three Grossman children still do have a dominant "father" figure in the parent that they still call "Dad." Paula Grossman is the undisputed boss of the Grossman household, and makes all the final rulings on the matter of discipline. She also doesn't do any of the cooking or the cleaning, but that's because she doesn't like to do those things.

"I'm not der Fuhrer or anything like that," she said. "My wife and children are not afraid of me. That is, unless you all respect fear."

A Cleaning Hint

When taking down your Christmas tree, lay an old sheet on the floor and put the tree on it. Pull the sheet around the tree and carry outside. You'll spend much less time cleaning up needles, which can clog up a vacuum cleaner hose.

A Popcorn Cushion

Popped popcorn can be used for a cushion for sending home made cookies through the mail. Pack cookies and popcorn in alternate layers in coffee or shortening cans. There will be less cookie breakage.

WHAT IS MEANT BY GAIN OR POWER OF A HEARING AID?

There are two measurements of a hearing aid's performance. GAIN is the amount by which the loudness of a sound is increased by the aid. The amount of gain is adjustable by the aid's volume control.

POWER refers to the maximum loudness an aid can develop at the eardrum. In most aids, this is not adjustable.

Farm Prices Show 5% Decline In Month

By The Associated Press

Prices received by Nebraska farmers for their products declined 5% during the month ended Nov. 15, but remained well above the year-ago level.

Under a rating system which assigns 100 points to the 1909-14 base period, the price index in mid-November was 507, compared with 531 a month earlier and 357 a year ago, the state-federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported Wednesday.

Leading the month's decline were livestock prices, down 5% although 34% higher than last year. Crop prices dropped only slightly.

Hog prices in Nebraska dropped $1 during the month to $39.60 per hundredweight, but that still topped last year by $13.20.

Beef cattle prices declined $4.30 during the month to $41.20, up $7.80 from November of last year.

Eggs at 41½ cents per dozen were about double last year's price.

Wheat lost 3 cents a bushel during the month, to $3.97, still more than twice the $1.87 farmers were receiving in November last year.

Corn in mid-November averaged $2.11 per bushel, compared with $2.16 a month earlier and $1.23 a year ago.

Grain sorghum dropped 10 cents during the month to $3.41 per hundredweight. A year ago the price was $2.05.

Cattle slaughtered in Nebraska during October totaled 387,000 head, down 9% from the same month last year. But the hog kill climbed 6%, to 248,000 head.

Flight Cuts By Frontier Prompt Action By PSC

Flight cutbacks by Frontier Airlines have prompted the Nebraska Public Services Commission to order that any cuts in intrastate air service should first be cleared with the commission.

In a resolution approved Monday by the four commissioners present, the commission said the cutback of 18 flights by Frontier beginning this Saturday "jeopardizes the public convenience and necessity beyond that which is demanded by the national fuel shortage." Eight Nebraska cities will be affected.

The commission is constitutionally authorized to regulate common carriers on an intrastate basis.

Game Unit Union Sought

The National Union of Police Officers has petitioned the State Court of Industrial Relations for exclusive bargaining status to represent 45 conservation officers of the State Game and Parks Commission.

Presiding Judge John Baylor has rejected the form in which the petition was filed and will dismiss the case unless it is properly drafted.

The union, an arm of the AFL-CIO, is seeking an election on the representation issue and submitted forms signed by Game Commission wardens requesting an election.

The union is asking to represent conservation officers I & II and their district supervisors on matters relating to wages and working conditions.

Shuttle For Tourists Eyed

Lansing, Mich. (UPI) — Gov. William G. Milliken may seek some $1 million in federally allocated funds to set up an "emergency" bus and rail network to northern Michigan tourist centers, a spokesman said.

Such a system would provide recreation-minded residents of southern Michigan with an alternative to weekend car trips that could leave them stranded as a result of gasoline sale restrictions.

They Can't Shop

Cobourg, Ont. (AP) — A judge found two men guilty of stealing four packages of steaks, and ruled they couldn't shop anywhere personally for two years. He also fined them $250 each.

Gap In Recording 'Disturbed' Nixon

©The New York Times

Washington — President Nixon was "very, very disturbed" and "almost incredulous" when he was told on Nov. 15 that there was an 18-minute gap in one of the subpoenaed White House tape recordings, Gen. Alexander M. Haig testified Wednesday.

Haig, Nixon's chief of staff, said he heard the news Nov. 14 from one of the President's lawyers, but that he had decided to withhold the information from the President until the following day to allow Nixon to give a speech to a group of realtors without the burden of the new disclosure.

"I felt the situation was sufficiently worrisome, I should let him complete his speech," Haig said.

Last week Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, testified that on Oct. 1 she pressed the wrong button on her tape recorder while reviewing the tape, and that when she discovered her mistake, she found, for several minutes, a "shrill" buzzing sound on the tape instead of conversation. She also testified that she had informed the President immediately.

The White House position, however, has been that, first, the gap on the tape was not discovered until Nov. 14, and that, second, it was not until Nov. 14 that the White House realized the tape was subpoenaed.

Miss Woods had testified that the President had told her last Oct. 1 "not to worry" about the mistake, because that conversation had not been covered by the subpoena. She also modified her testimony somewhat to say that she did not understand how she could have caused more than five minutes of the gap.

Haig backed up at least the first contention, saying that Nixon had told him of Miss Woods' report shortly after she made it, and had said the tape had not been subpoenaed.

Haig also said he had been told a few days earlier by one of the lawyers, J. Fred Buzhardt Jr., that the conversation in question was not covered by the special Watergate prosecution's subpoena of tapes and documents of nine presidential conversations.

The subject arose on Sept. 29, Haig said, when Miss Woods and Stephen Bull, a presidential aide, were at Camp David preparing to play the subpoenaed tapes so that Miss Woods could type up summaries of the conversations.

The disputed conversation is Nixon's discussion with H. R. Haldeman, his former chief of staff, on June 20, 1972, three days after the Watergate break-in. The 18-minute gap obliterates the only Watergate-related segment of the conversation, a sequence in which, according to Haldeman's notes of the meeting, the President ordered a "public relations campaign to counteract the effect of the break-in."

The Haldeman notes, according to previous testimony, were found late on Nov. 15. As Haig recounted it Wednesday, the discovery, through the notes that "a portion of the gap included some discussion of Watergate was not a piece of news I accepted with tranquillity."

It was also a piece of news that he had to relay immediately to the President, he said. The President's reaction, as he recalled it, was to say "we have to do whatever is technically feasible to reconstitute the tape if that can be done."

Haig repeated earlier testimony regarding the White House's queries to a technical expert about possible ways to reconstruct the tape. He did not offer any information and was not asked about what other steps the White House actually took.

Streamlined Budget Bill Passes House

Washington (UPI) — The House approved streamlined federal budget procedures with strengthened congressional control of the purse Wednesday after rejecting a move to delete a proposed limit on presidential power to impound appropriated funds.

Among other provisions, the legislation would provide Congress more time to work on the budget submitted by the President each January by changing the beginning of the federal business year from July 1 to Oct. 1, beginning in 1975.

The bill was approved 386 to 23, and sent to the Senate after the House turned back a Republican effort to eliminate the impoundment section. That vote was 295 to 108.

The issue arose over President Nixon's impoundment of billions of dollars Congress appropriated for education, health, housing and other programs. In subsequent court tests the impoundments were ruled illegal in some two dozen suits, but upheld in several others.

The House bill would require the President to report within 10 days any impoundment or delay in spending appropriated funds. Either the House or the Senate could veto the impoundment by passing a resolution within 60 legislative days after receiving the message.

The comptroller general, an officer of Congress, would be empowered to bring suit in federal court against any administration, agency or official to enforce the congressional action.

The budget section of the bill would establish a 23-member House Budget Committee to oversee the budget and would set a timetable for each step in the process of putting the budget together.

It was designed to bring some order to what has traditionally been a chaotic process, with the appropriations committee churning out a series of money bills with little consideration for what the final budget total will be.

Each year, many appropriations bills are not ready by the end of the fiscal year and Congress must provide temporary funding extensions to allow the government to operate. This makes advance planning of programs difficult and some departments sometimes operate an entire fiscal year under such "continuing resolutions."

Harding To Head Advisory Panel

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Citizens' Advisory Committee to the City-County Implementation Committee (CCIC) elected Lincoln attorney Bill Harding chairman Wednesday.

State Sen. Jerome Warner was elected vice chairman of the 26-member group which will review CCIC task force committee recommendations on merging police services, public works, purchasing, budgeting, fire and emergency services.

The citizens committee decided to appoint liason members to attend various task force meetings.

Committee member Roger Dobson voted against that motion saying he did not see any value "in having three or four people report what they think they heard."

Instead, he urged that task force chairmen attend committee meetings.

But, committee member the Rev. Robert Jeambey said the committee would have difficulty judging the merits of task force recommendations "if we can't plug in to their thought processes."

If not, he said the citizens committee "may be superfluous and we're just wasting each others' time."

The committee also directed that task forces provide explanations of their recommendations to the committee and supply a list of "pro and con" arguments for adopting the recommendations.

The committee voted to meet on the second Tuesday of each month at 3:30 p.m. Those meetings will be open to the public.

Harding said he would call another meeting before the Legislature convenes Jan. 1 to discuss a purchasing task force recommendation to give the County Board more control over county purchasing practices.

To enact such a recommendation, the CCIC may need to seek enabling legislation.

Purchasing Task Force Chairman Dick Bennett explained that such legislation would not "tie the hands" of the board, but would leave them the option of contracting for purchasing services with the city or going another route.

Although admitting that such legislation would be an improvement over the existing county purchasing practices, Harding asked, "Are we going to go along with this because it's an improvement, or are we going to say to the CCIC 'full speed ahead?' "

The committee will discuss endorsing that task force recommendation at that special meeting to be called by Harding.

Home Is Still Sought By Community Center

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

The Southwest Lancaster County Community Center is currently an organization without a home.

The group is temporarily housed in the United Methodist Church in Martell, but uses a number of other buildings in the area for its activities.

With a goal of providing recreation for young and old in the rural areas, the center boasts a pool and ping-pong table and sewing machines for both classes and individual use.

Although a building fund-raising drive was held recently, not enough money was raised to rent and renovate a building the group had decided on.

But now, the acting chairman of the center's planning committee, the Rev. Lincoln Justice or Martell's United Methodist, believes that a building is not a number one priority.

"We need people and more community support," said Justice.

He feels there is definitely a need for a community development group that is interested in planning for the whole area.

At present, he noted, the center is the work of a group of concerned citizens under the sponsorship of the parish.

Justice emphasized that the group wants to do everything possible "without any government help."

"We hope to initiate self-sustaining and independent programs," he added.

Among the programs planned or underway are fellowship luncheon meetings for senior citizens and free-walk-in clinics.

Mrs. Elsie Bussard, a rural Rokeby resident and a key person in initiating the community organization, reported the group's efforts to supply the center with a full family library.

With a complete set of encyclopedias for a start, Mrs. Bussard is calling for contributions of old books, especially those for young children.

Other more timely activities include a series of Halloween parties with candy sacks and games for youngsters from the rural areas of Sprague, Martell, Hallam, Roca, Rokeby, and Denton.

Tuesday night from 7-9:30 p.m. those in kindergarten through sixth grade are invited to the Sprague-Martell School for Halloween festivities. Preschoolers and their moms will celebrate from 9 to 10:30 a.m. at the Martell United Methodist Church. Wednesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. another party will be held at the church for all area youngsters.

Someone Stole School's Stove

Warren, Ohio (AP) — A two-room Amish school at West Farmington was closed because someone stole a stove. Trumbull County sheriff's deputies said someone broke into the building last week and took one of two stoves. The remaining stove would not heat the entire building, so classes were canceled for the 42 pupils. Because of the energy crisis, there has been a run on wood and coal stoves in this area. Dealers say they have been sold out for six weeks.

Cut In Store Hours Resolution Planned

City Councilman Max Denney said Wednesday he will introduce a resolution at Monday's council meeting urging merchants to restrict their business hours.

Denney is suggesting businessmen voluntarily close one day a week and close at 7 p.m. each night they are open.

Denney said the resolution also is recommending that merchants restrict their outdoor lighting to the minimum required to maintain store identification and security.

The business hour winddown would begin after the Christmas shopping season, Jan. 1., under Denney's plan.

At last Monday's council meeting, Denney suggested his fellow lawmakers take the lead in promoting the conservation of electricity, heating oil and gasoline.

Denney stressed that compliance with the council resolution would be voluntary since, he said, "the idea of government forcing people to do something is repugnant to me."

But, he held out the possibility of introducing an ordinance requiring such compliance if the voluntary effort to cut down business hours fails. Denney has requested a legal opinion on the legality of such an ordinance from City Atty. Dick Wood.

Denney said he has sent copies of his proposed resolution to businessmen and the Chamber of Commerce for their reaction.

Application Rejected

Newport Beach, Calif. (UPI) — The State Coastal Zone Conservation Commission rejected energy shortage arguments and denied an application to add two generation units at the San Onofre nuclear power plant.

Sen. Curtis Favors Keeping Sugar Act

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb. (AP)—Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., spoke out in favor of continuing the Sugar Act during his keynote address at the annual meeting of the National Sugarbeet Growers Federation at Scottsbluff Wednesday.

"The Sugar Act is not without its problems and occasional criticism, but its basic features should not be abandoned," he said.

Curtis said the act has accomplished its three primary purposes: to protect the welfare of the U.S. sugar industry; to provide consumers with ample sugar at reasonable prices; and to promote and strengthen the trade of the United States.

Since it was passed in 1934, the act has been amended several times, but Curtis pointed out the basic framework of the act has not changed.

"The sugar act has paid is own way," he told delegates from 13 Midwest and Western states. "It has been good for the United States treasury and the taxpayers."

Growers are strongly in favor of the act which derives funds from the sugar industry. Not only is it a self-supporting program, growers contend, but it has added more than $2.5 billion to the U.S. Treasury in its 40-year life.

Some government officials have proposed the discontinuation of the act or broad changes. Curtis does not favor these proposals which call for the abandonment of the basic features.

However, Arthur Calcagnini, director of the Sugar Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, termed the Sugar Act obsolete because it is based on the assumption of a relatively constant world sugar surplus. He said this surplus no longer exists.

Calcagnini said sugar production is falling in foreign countries.

He advocated a target price or parity system, but said the sugar industry needs to get away from government control.

Richard W. Blake, of Washington, D.C., executive vice president of the National Federation, deplored any major changes in the Sugar Act. The administration's plan to scrap the act and turn to a free-market oriented program would be a mistake, he said.

In his annual report to grower association leaders, Blake said, "There are compelling reasons for continuing the act in its basic form with proper and necessary modifcations."

The energy crisis was outlined for delelates by Jack Ware of the American Petroleum Institute, Washington, D.C.

He said petroleum from the Alaskan fields will not be available until 1977 or 1978 at the earliest and that the nation should develop other sources of energy such as nuclear power plants.

In reply to questions, he said exploration for new petroleum sources will probably receive top priority and agriculture will be second.

Coverage Area Would Change, Officials Claim

WASHINGTON (AP)—Officials of the National Park Service here said Wednesday that a reorganization of the service would mean a change in the coverage area of the Omaha Regional Office.

Under the new plan, the Omaha office will cover Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Ohio.

The states being dropped from the Omaha area include North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado and Montana.

Sen. Roman Hruska (R—Neb.) said he had been assured by service officials that the Omaha office would not close down.

Hruska noted that the announcement would quiet recent rumors that the Omaha office would close.

Scotch Whisky Outlook Bleak

Glasgow, Scotland (AP) — Bad news for Scotch whisky drinkers: shortage of heating oil has forced Scottish distillers to cut production.

The Scotch Whisky Association said the situation is severe. Oil is vital to distillers through many stages of production, including the steam-heating of stills.

Murders Probe Near Conclusion

By United Press International

The massive and highly complex investigation into the September murders of a prominent rural Culbertson couple has reached its final stages, it was learned Wednesday night.

UPI learned that the three attorneys, involved in the prosecution portion of the case in the slayings of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hoyt, met in Lincoln for three hours Monday night.

It was the first time the three attorneys had met as a group and the first time that "definite plans" were laid out for the remainder of the investigation.

Frontier County Atty. Fred Schroeder Jr. of Curtis will be the prosecutor in the case when charges are filed. He will receive substantial assistance from the other two attorneys at the Lincoln meeting, Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas and Deputy Douglas County Atty. Sam Cooper.

Top Prosecutors

Douglas and Cooper are regarded as the top or among the top criminal prosecutors in the state.

Investigation has shown so far that the Hoyts were shot to death around Sept. 23 before their bodies were dissected and thrown into the Harry Strunk lake near Cambridge in Frontier County.

When the body parts began turning up in the lake in October, Schroeder asked Douglas to assist in the case. Cooper and Schroeder first discussed at length what Cooper could do in assisting in the case during the Nebraska Bar Association annual convention in Omaha last month.

During this week's meeting, the three attorneys evaluated the lengthy reports on evidence gathered in the case and each attorney took the responsibility for different aspects in the final stages of the investigation.

It was learned that the three attorneys agreed that an "adequate amount of time" had passed in the investigation to warrant a final push towards the eventual filing of charges.

'Two Or Three' Suspects

Douglas has said there are "two or three" suspects in the case but has declined to elaborate further as has Schroeder. Cooper has referred all questions on that matter to either Douglas or Schroeder.

The conclusions reached during the Lincoln meeting involve both legal and investigative aspects of the probe, which has involved at least 1,000 man hours of investigation by the state patrol, county sheriffs offices and private investigator Robert Sawdon of Lincoln.

Cooper coordinated the efforts of the Douglas County deputy sheriff's volunteer search and recovery team which early last month recovered the 16th body part from the murky lake.

The body part was later identified by pathologists as that of a male and bearing strong evidence of a .22 caliber bullet wound. A previous body part pulled from the lake has been identified as that of a woman and also bore strong evidence of a .22 caliber bullet wound.

Wanek Enters Innocent Plea To Tax Count

Omaha (AP) — Perkins County Atty. Frederick E. Wanek Wednesday pleaded innocent before Federal District Court Judge Robert V. Denney to two counts of failing to file income tax returns.

The Grant attorney is charged with failure to make returns on $40,860 allegedly earned in 1970 and $41,326 in 1971.

Senate Okays Indian Policy Review Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Wednesday passed legislation establishing an American Indian Policy Review Commission.

The primary purpose of the legislation "is to authorize a congressional review of the legal and historical background which serves as the basis for the unique relationship between the Indian people and the federal government in order to bring about a fundamental reform."

It provides for a commission of bipartisan composition from both houses of Congress and five members from the Indian community.

The legislation was introduced by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., in the wake of a takeover by Indian dissidents of Wounded Knee, S.D.

The measure now goes to the House.

Montevideo, Uruguay (AP) — Uruguay's military-backed government revealed it has arrested about 150 persons in a crackdown on Marxist organizations.

Kennedy Said Setting Presidential Course

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has set a course that will leave him free to seek the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination but has made no final decision to run, Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., said Wednesday.

Tunney told UPI "there will be tremendous pressure" on Kennedy to run and said the Massachusetts senator is the "odds-on, overwhelming favorite" to win the nomination.

Tunney, one of Kennedy's closest friends, said, "I think he is going to have to make his decision in early 1975."

"I think," Tunney said, "he is doing everything now which would be necessary to be a viable candidate in the event he wants to be.

"I think clearly it puts him on that course if you are looking at it in a preparatory fashion," Tunney said. "For him the arguments against running are overwhelmingly personal."

Members of Kennedy's family are known to be strongly opposed to his running for president.

"Politically there are no reasons why he shouldn't run," Tunney added. "Personally there are all kinds of reasons. If there were not so much in the way of family pressures, the decision would already be made to run."

But Tunney said Kennedy is "keeping his options open" and remains "very much in doubt as to what he'll do."

Tunney also said "an awful lot will depend on what happens in the congressional elections next year," in which Kennedy is expected to play a major role as the party's strongest campaigner.

"Beginning in 1975, if the polls are the same as they are today — showing Kennedy as his party's leading choice — there will be tremendous pressure on him to run from all segments of the party," he said.

Tunney said Kennedy's standing in the party was "badly hurt" after the 1969 Chappaquiddick bridge accident but that his work in the Senate since then and his efforts for the party in the 1972 campaign have put that incident behind him.

Chicago (UPI) — Psychologist Edwin Zolik said the fuel shortage could lead to increased alcoholism and rising birth rates.

U.S. Is Accused Of Spy Flight

Tokyo (AP) — North Korea on Thursday accused the United States of sending a high-altitude reconnaissance plane to spy along its southern border.

Pyongyang's Korean Central News Agency said the plane swept over Omjin peninsula and later flew from the east coast to the west coast, passing over three North Korean border towns.

Actor Wins Legal Suit

Los Angeles (AP) — Michelle Triola sued actor Lee Marvin for $500,000, claiming she lived with him for six years and was entitled to the rights of a legally divorced wife.

However, Marvin's attorney, David Kagon, contended any agreement between the couple was not binding because it was made while the actor still was married to his first wife.

Superior court judge William Munnell agreed with Kagon and dismissed the suit Wednesday.

Pony Express To Hit Trail Again

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP)—The Old West will live again April 19-20 as the Pony Express Riders of Nebraska hit the trail for their second annual ride to raise money for the state's crippled children.

Last year the horsemen rode more than 400 miles and netted $20,000 ror the Nebraska Easter Seal Society's Camp Kiwanis at Milford.

Don Nealon, chairman of the Hall County Easter Seal Society, said the group will hold its first "round-up" Saturday at the Ramada Inn in Grand Island. The planning session will be one of several scheduled across the state.

Nealon said the slogan of the organization is "we ride so that they may walk."

Last year the Hall County Sheriff's Posse participated in the ride and conducted several fund-raising events.

Nealon said none of the money raised is used for administration. It all goes directly to Camp Kiwanis.

Nealon said it is hoped a Grand Island chapter of the organization will be formed as a result of the meeting Saturday.

The ride was conducted in Nebraska for the first time last year. Nealon said a similar ride has been conducted in Iowa for several years, with the purpose calling attention to the fund-raising drive by the Easter Seal Society.

AP

NEALON . . . makes plans for charity ride.

The 1972 ride began in Gothenburg at the site of the original Pony Express station. For several months, organizations along the route sponsored fund-raising events for the society.

The donations and letters of good will were included in the pouches of the riders.

Nealon said the ride last year covered only part of Nebraska but this year it is hoped it will spread statewide. He said "we hope that the clubs up north will participate so we can have a ride going east and west as well as north-south."

Shooting Case Is Referred To Juvenile Court

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The case of a 16-year-old youth arrested Saturday night in connection with the shooting death of his invalid father has been referred to Juvenile Court, Deputy County Atty. Steven Renteria said Tuesday.

Renteria said the case was referred to Juvenile Court rather than District Court because of the youth's "low IQ, borderline mental retardation and family situation."

Tests have placed his educational attainment at a second-or third-grade level, according to Renteria, who said this isn't the first time the family has had problems. He is being held in the jail portion of the Douglas County Youth Center, Renteria said.

Police said the boy's father died about 6 p.m. Saturday as the result of two shotgun blasts in the stomach.

A double amputee, the father lost one leg in a shooting accident 15 years ago and the other after a broken ankle became infected.

Gas Riots Feared

Washington (AP) — Arthur M. Okun, an economic adviser to former President Lyndon B. Johnson, said gasoline station riots may occur if the government fails to act quickly to ration gasoline or pass a tax to dampen its consumption.

Decision Delayed

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly postponed until next year a decision on whether to expel the U.S.-supported government of Cambodia and seat the exile regime of deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Air Force Jet Flew Senators To Washington

©The New York Times

Washington — The White House confirmed Tuesday that its congressional liaison office dispatched an Air Force plane Sunday to Oklahoma, where it picked up two Republican senators and returned them to Washington, where they voted to uphold a filibuster aimed to kill an amendment to the debt ceiling bill.

The senators, Henry L. Bellmon and Dewey F. Bartlett, had been hunting quail in their home state.

The amendment, opposed by the White House, would have provided federal financing for presidential election campaigns.

Soviet Airline, Aeroflot, Pays $40,000 Fine

Washington (UPI) — Like any capitalist outfit called on the U.S. government carpet, Aeroflot, the Soviet Union's state airline, paid a $40,000 fine for deceptive business practices.

The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) charged Aeroflot illegally sold 120 one-way New York to Paris and New York to London tickets.

In an agreement with the board, Aeroflot agreed to a "cease and desist" order, and paid the board $40,000 in a compromise penalty.

Dow Below 800

New York (AP) — With no good news to bring Wall Street out of its six-week depression, the stock market continued its downward path Wednesday, breaking through a support level some brokers thought might hold.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 14.90 to 788.31, its lowest close in more than three years. Since beginning its present slide Oct. 29, the Dow has fallen 20 per cent, or nearly 200 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange was 19.18 million shares, slightly less than Tuesday's, and the tape was behind at the bell. Declines swamped advances 1,299 to 242 among 1,829 issues traded. The Big Board's broad-based index dropped .83 to 49.05.

Though brokers had hoped the market would find support at the Dow's 800 level-psychologically important because of the "double zeros," one broker said — the market swept lower early in the session.

"Let's face it, the psychology is terrible, there's no good news, and investors have got to have something to hang their hat on," said Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co.

The failure of economic analysts to predict how the fuel-short economy will proceed remained the market's biggest problem, brokers said.

In the news, government officials warned of "some economic dislocations" next year as a result of Arab oil embargos, although one said unemployment would not exceed 6 per cent next year.

THE PADDOCK

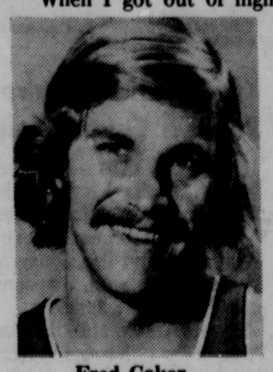
New Situation

Unlike many other first-year athletes at Nebraska, Fred Coker is never at a loss for words. He's hardly what you might term "shy."

Nevertheless, as a junior college transfer from El Camino (Calif.) Junior College, Coker has played as much, if not more, basketball than most of the Nebraska basketball team — especially since 7 of 15 Huskers are freshmen.



Fred Coker

"When I got out of high school, I didn't think I wanted to jump right into a four-year program," the 6-5 junior from Redondo Beach, Calif., said. "If I had gone right to Nebraska, I don't think I would have been fundamentally ready to play in the Big Eight.

"I had a lot of letters, but I wanted to stay close to home," he said. "Coach Bill Bloom made an extended effort to get me to go to El Camino and that's where I went."

Coker didn't let Bloom regret that decision. An all-state selection both years, he paced El Camino to second-place in the California Juco ranks his first year with a 20-8 record and seventh-place his last year with a 21-7 slate.

He averaged 18.9 points-per-game last year and grabbed 12.3 rebounds-per-game while hitting 54 per cent from the field and 75 per cent from the free throw line. Those statistics were proficient enough to attract the attention of former Nebraska assistant basketball coach Rex Hughes (now an aide at Southern California) who called Lincoln and suggested the NU staff "investigate" Coker.

Changed Decision

Unlike his decision after high school, Coker was more than ready to leave California for a different area.

"It was a matter of wanting to get out of California and see what's happening in other parts of the country," he said. "I lived there (in California) all my life and I figured if I came to Nebraska, I'd be able to do business better."

Although Coker has reeeived only one extended-duty assignment at Nebraska, he was most impressive in that game — a 16-point performance in the annual intrasquad scrimmage. But don't get the impression that Coker is disturbed about his lack of playing time.

"I think any player hopes to start, but I'd be just as content playing in a secondary role as a starting role," he said. "I'm just here to contribute."

Terming Nebraska basketball as physically difficult as that in the west, Coker noted the differences between the two styles of competition.

"The offense here is speeded up with the 30-second clock. We didn't have that back in California," he said. "There's more shooting here but the defense is similar. The rebounding is just as tough, but the conditioning program is a lot more intense here. I've never done as much running as I've done here so far."

While the Nebraska program under Joe Cipriano has never relied extensively on junior college transfers, Fred Coker has the ability to break that record and become a major factor in Nebraska's drive to achieve a Big Eight championship.

Nissen Turns Competitive Drive To Coaching Makes Winning Debut

STAR PHOTOS

Former Fairbury all-stater Bob Siegel scored an easy layup basket to give Nebraska's junior varsity basketball team a 6-3 lead early in its Saturday night game at the Coliseum against York Junior College.

As Siegel rolled on the ground trying to get up after scoring, Al Nissen screamed frantically from the bench, "Get back, Bob, get back."

Later on, with Nebraska leading comfortably at 61-39 with 14 minutes remaining, Nissen chatted loudly to the referee: Ref, Keep your eyes on the play, he's traveling."

That's the way Al Nissen is, a competitor, as a player for three years for Nebraska (1969-72) and even more determined to win as a coach in his first coaching assignment.

Although his Nebraska team won, 84-64 against York, Nissen said he views his coaching duties as considerably more complex than when he played for the Huskers.

"I can see a lot more things happen from the bench. When coach (Joe Cipriano) would get on me for things when I was playing, I can see why it's easier to see things when you're not playing."

Nissen said his acquiring the JV coaching job occurred after he was released by the Kansas City-Omaha Kings of the National Basketball Association. He said he asked Cipriano if he could help the team and Cipriano indicated that he needed a JV coach.

Although Nissen may not continue coaching past this season, he said if the opportunity arose again, he would accept a job on the college level.

"I've coached before for coach Cipriano's summer basketball camps, but that was the first real game I've coached, he said "I don't think I'd want to coach on the high school level. I'd like to be involved with kids who have a little more background."

Future plans hinge on his acceptance into Nebraska's Medical School in Omaha. Nissen said he has applied for a three-year program which would begin this summer, but it won't be known until March which students will be accepted.

While the opening-game victory was relatively easy, Nissen has been besieged with the normal preseason problems that afflict any team.

"Two kids quit and then two kids were declared scholastically ineligible," he said. "We were down to five or six players for a while. Of the 44 who tried out for the team, we cut that to 13 and now we have eight left.

"That was the worst part of coaching so far — having to cut players when everybody was out on their own with no money," he added. "I know what it's like to be cut."

Nissen isn't reluctant to discuss his near miss in landing a berth on the Kings. He made all the player cuts except the final one.

"I was disappointed since they only had four guards left and NBA teams usually carry four guards," he explained. "I wasn't really angry and I could understand their situation since Archibald (all-star shooting sensation Nate) plays 48 minutes and they don't need a substitute for him.

"I'd rather be playing, but I'm not bitter about it, I still correspond with some of the players," he said.

Several well-wishers congratulated him after his initial coaching victory — a sign that Nebraska fans remember his exploits as a Husker player.

"It's a lot of fun coaching and if I don't get into med school, I'd like to continue with it," he said.

FRESHMEN SELECTED

Big 8 Honors Given

Kansas City (AP) — The Colorado Buffaloes were the biggest disappointment in the Big Eight Conference the past football season.

The biggest surprise was Kansas.

A 20-member board from the Big Eight area made the selections Wednesday.

At the same time, the board voted Billy Waddy, Colorado tailback, the freshman offensive player of the year, and Phillip Dokes, Oklahoma State tackle, the freshman defensive player.

The board named Barry Switzer of Oklahoma the coach of the year, All-America quarterback Dave Jaynes of Kansas the offensive player of the year and All-America middle guard Lucious Selmon of Oklahoma the top defensive ace. Both players are seniors.

Colorado, with its record of 5-6, ran away with the voting as the biggest disappointment. Iowa State, 4-7, was the only other team to get a vote.

Kansas just did slip past Oklahoma as the No. 1 surprise. The Jawhawks, with Jaynes passing brilliantly all season, ran up a 7-3-1 mark and earned a berth in the Liberty Bowl. Kansas tied Nebraska for second place in the conference race.

Waddy rushed for 551 yards and had a game average of 55.1 yards. Dokes was outstanding in the Cowboys' defense.

Switzer, in his first season as head coach and with the Sooners statring a two-year probation, guided Oklahoma to a 10-0-1 campaign. Oklahoma won the Big Eight title and is ranked second nationally.

Switzer beat out Coach Don Fambrough of Kansas by an eyelash. No other coach received a vote.

Jaynes, slipping past Oklahoma's Joe Washington in the voting, led the league in passing and total offense. He found targets 172 times on 330 tosses for 2,131 yards and 13 touchdowns and had only nine throws intercepted.

Nobody was even close to Selmon in the race for defensive player honors.

Hastings Favored To Repeat

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Seward — The fifth annual Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference's pre-season basketball tournament will probably be a repeat of the last four.

Hastings has won the last four tournaments and is favored to repeat this year. Dr. Lynn Farrell only lost one reserve off last season's 24-4 Bronco team and picked some excellent talent at the same time.

Farrell's team is 2-0, including a game in which a school record of 132 points were scored.

Nebraska Wesleyan, also 2-0, meets Dana, 1-1, at 3:30 p.m. here Thursday to start the tournament. Midland, 0-0, plays Texas Lutheran at 5:15, Hastings and winless Concordia, 0-3, at 7 and Doane, 0-4 and Bellevue, 3-3, at 8:45.

The losers of the Midland-Texas Lutheran and Concordia-Hastings games play at 3:30 p.m. Friday followed by the losers of the Doane-Bellevue and Dana-Nebraska Wesleyan at 5:15.

The winners of Thursday's 3:30 and 8:45 games meet at 7 Friday and the winners of Thursday's 5:15 and 7 at 8:45.

Finals will be Saturday with seventh place being decided at 3:30 p.m., fifth at 5:15, third at 7 and the title game at 8:45.

The most deceiving record in the tournament probably belongs to Doane, 0-4. The Tigers went on a road trip and lost to Utah State, Idaho, Boise State and Weber State in five days.

However, coach Bob Erickson's Crete team returns every member from last year's team which tied NWU for second place in the regular season in the NIAC.

The Plainsmen of Dr. Irv Peterson have apparently solved the problem of finding a replacement for Mike Renken, who holds all the school records in rebounding, in 6-5 Fairbury transfer Gene Parks.

Former Lincoln East standout Steve Joekel has taken over the ball handling chores for NWU and also is the team's outside threat. He had a career high of 34 points in the season opener.

Dana has beaten Bellevue and Concordia, in turn, has lost to Bellevue. Not much is known about Texas Lutheran, except the guests aren't expected to be as strong as Hastings.

Midland has yet to play a game, but lost its two top players from last year and will be young.

Anderson Said Finalist For Award

Mission, Kans. — Nine finalists in the 1973 College Athletics Top Ten Student-Athlete Awards have been announced by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The finalists from the fall nominations will compete with the six finalists from the winter-spring nominations for the Today's Top Five Student-Athletes Awards. The Today's Top Five is part of the College athletics Top Ten, which also honors five distinguished former student-athletes on their Silver Anniversary as college graduates.

The fall finalists are:

Forrest P. (Frosty) Anderson, Jr., Nebraska, end; David A. Blandino, Pittsburgh, offensive tackle; Monte R. Doris, Southern California, defensive lineman; David D. Gallagher, Michigan, defensive tackle; Charles M. Getty, Penn State, offensive tackle; Richard A. Haynie, Air Force Academy, quarterback; Randall P. Poltl, Stanford, safety; Frank T. Tusinski, U. Millsouri-St. Louis, soccer; and Norris L. Weese, Mississippi, quarterback.

NU Wrestlers Open Dual Season Friday

With three season-opening tournaments out of the way, coach Orval Borgialli's Nebraska wrestlers open their duel season this weekend.

The NU wrestlers take on defending NCAA champion Iowa State at Hilton Coliseum in Ames at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

City Teams Gave Pius Valuable Experience

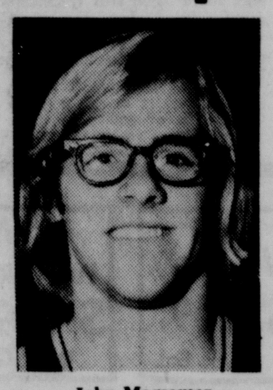
By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer
Last of a Series

The experience of playing Lincoln basketball teams is all but over. But Lincoln Pius X coach Don Kelley hopes the experience isn't forgotten.

"I think we were able to learn some great things playing in this city," says Kelley. "Sometimes we were competitive. Sometimes we weren't. But we always seemed to have profitted from the experience."

The Thunderbolts no longer play city rivals Northeast and East, which have combined for five state Class A championships and one runnerup finish in the last seven years. Southeast also dropped the 'Bolts from its schedule to start fulfilling commitments to the new I-80 Conference, which will begin next fall.

"We may not play a Lincoln team (Lincoln High) until March. But we tried to get a representative schedule. And I think it's as good as any Class B schedule in the state," says Kelley. "We play Omaha teams, Southern teams, Southwest teams, Northeast teams."



John Magsamen

Pius X returns four lettermen from last March's Class B state semifinalist club, edged out by eventual champion Fairbury.

But one of those lettermen, Artie Aksamit, won't be available until January at the earliest. Last season's leading 'Bolt rebounder and defensive ace and second leading scorer underwent knee surgery for a football injury in September and still can't practice.

Kelley, however, believes he has in his other three returning lettermen "solid players who can score, play the good defense and have a good knowledge of the game."

All-state football end John Magsamen, who led Pius X with a 13+ scoring average last season, and guards Pat Anderson and Jim Hamersky are other returning lettermen.

"This group represents the most returning experience we've had for a while," notes Kelley. "We don't have anyone exceptionally big. We're not real quick and we're not the best bunch of shooters. But this group has a great desire to win and certainly expects to win despite a rugged schedule."

That desire is almost too intense, according to Kelley, who believes "we're trying too hard at this point. I like to play loose and experiment in December."

With Aksamit at least temporarily out of the picture, Kelley maintains "we'll have to hitch up our belt and all do a better job of rebounding. And that means our guards are going to have to help."

Anderson and Hamersky inherit that task. The two who will join Magsamen in the front line will be chosen from among Eric Siepker, Mike Peters, Doug Charko and Rick Zitek.

Kelley also has been impressed with the outside shooting and hustle of what he calls his midgets — Joe Millard (5-9) and Bob McCloskey (5-8). Senior Mike Creal "has shown good early shooting form, too," according to Kelley.

Rodgers Named Ga. Tech Coach

ATLANTA (AP) — Franklin "Pepper" Rodgers, whose UCLA Bruins have posted 8-3 and 9-2 records the past two football seasons, was named Wednesday night to succeed Bill Fulcher as head football coach of the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets.

Rodgers, a 1954 Tech graduate who quarterbacked the Yellow Jackets to three winning bowl games, was the unanimous selection of the Tech Athletic Board on the recommendation of Athletic Director Bobby Dodd, his former coach.

Fulcher resigned earlier Wednesday, saying he was "no longer happy with coaching." His Jackets finished the season with a 5-6 record.

"I really love UCLA and wouldn't leave except to go to the place where I ushered at football games, went to school and have a multitude of friends," Rodgers said in Los Angeles.

UCLA Athletic Director J. D. Morgan said the search would begin immediately for a replacement.

"I really hate to see him leave and yet I understand his great feeling for his alma mater," Morgan said. "I know he will do an outstanding job and I wish him well."

Rodgers, an Atlanta native, played for Tech in 151-53. The squads he quarterbacked were 30-2-1.

The new Tech coach was an assistant at his alma mater in 1954 and became an assistant at the Air Force Academy, Florida and UCLA.

He took his first head coaching job at Kansas in 1967 and posted a record of 20-22, including a 15-14 loss to Penn State in the 1969 Orange Bowl.

Huskers Smartest Players

Kansas City (AP) — The Nebraska Cornhuskers, who finished in a tie for second on the field, have the smartest football players in the Big Eight Conference in the classroom.

The Big Eight Academic All-Conference team announced Wednesday by the league's service bureau listed six Nebraska players. Five Colorado players were named.

Linebacker Doug Tarrant of Oklahoma State recorded a perfect 4.00 in his collegiate career. The team has a composite grade-point average of 3.29.

The All-Academic team:

Offense

Ends — Frosty Anderson, Nebraska; Ken Saathoff, Kansas. Tackles — Tom Wolf, Oklahoma State, and Eddie Foster, Oklahoma. Guards — Chris Kirley, Missouri, and Dan Anderson, Nebraska. Center — Bill McDonald, Colorado.
Backs — Clyde Crutchmer, Colorado; Steve Grogan, Kansas State; Maury Damkroger, Nebraska, and Ritch Bahe, Nebraska.
Kickers — Tom Goedjen, Iowa State.

Defense

Ends — Steve Manstedt, Nebraska, and Randy Geist, Colorado. Tackles — Barry Price, Oklahoma State, and Dewey Selmon, Oklahoma.

Backs — Rich Bland, Colorado; Randy Hughes, Oklahoma; Durwood Keeton, Oklahoma, and Randy Bozich, Iowa State.
Punter — Mike Terry, Oklahoma State.

SE Missouri Downs Peru

Cape Girardeau, Mo. (AP) — Southeast Missouri State hit a sizzling 52 per cent from the field Wednesday night and drubbed Peru State 99-70 in inter-conference basketball.

PERU (70) — B. Hunter 15, Beville 12, L. Hunter 8, Winston 10, Parker 2, Craig 7, Sanders 2, Woods 6, Harper 8.
SE MO. (99) — Valli 19, Lawrence 13, Haynes 10, McFerron 12, Arand 4, Cornejo 15, Kagle 8, M. Baker 6, Carter 2, Hill 2, Maritz 5, J. Baker 3.
Halftime: SE Mo. 62, Peru 40.

Gonzales Invited To Fight Hunter

Junior Gonzales of the Men's State Reformatory boxing team, has been invited to fight top amateur Bobby Lee Hunter Thursday night in Omaha.

Hunter, recently released from prison, boxes at 118 pounds for the Denver (Colo.) Rocks boxing team.

Hunter became known nationally during the Olympic trials when many selected him to capture his division. He lost during his first bout in the trials, but was invited to the Olympic training camp as an alternate.

Gonzales, in his first year of boxing, has collected an impressive string of wins over several Nebraska opponents.

30-Second Rule For Jaynes?

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina State Coach Lou Holtz said Wednesday he thinks a 30-second rule should be installed for Kansas quarterback David Jaynes when the two teams meet in the Liberty Bowl Dec. 17.

"If he hasn't decided which one of his receivers to throw to within 30 seconds, I think they should blow a whistle and the play ought to be run again," said Holtz.

Holtz kept reporters at a news conference, tied by telephone between Kansas and Raleigh, laughing as he described his team and its chances against Kansas, particularly running down State's pass rush and kicking game.

"Our only hope is that Jaynes will be so confused seeing all those receivers open he won't be able to decide which one to throw to," said Holtz.

He was asked by a reporter in Kansas whether his team blitzed much, and replied, "We do, but you can't tell it. If you look closely at the game films you can tell when we are blitzing, but it doesn't look like a blitz at first glance."

Holtz, asked to compare the Atlantic Coast Conference, where his team won the championship this season, and the Big Eight Conference, where Kansas is runnerup, called the Big Eight the "finest football conference in America" and said "the Southeastern Conference is the only one that can hold a candle to you."

Connors Continues Mastery Over Smith

BOSTON (UPI) — Jimmy Connors saved two match points Wednesday night and then went on to beat Stan Smith and maintain his 100 per cent record over America's top player and in the current Masters tennis tournament.

Connors, who is now 3-0 for the year against Smith, won the gruelling 2 hour 5 minute marathon, 6-0, 3-6, 7-6, and is 20 in the Masters round-robin series.

The result of the match will have no bearing on the 1973 U.S. men's rankings, which already have been decided but have yet to be announced. But Connors' victories in the U.S. indoor and pro championships, plus his two previous victories in head-to-head competition with Smith, probably will insure him the top spot.

In the Blue group of the round-robin, Australia's John Newcombe maintained his perfect record with a 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 win over Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., while defending champion Ilie Nastase, complaining the crowd was against him, scored his first victory against a loss when he beat Wimbledon champion Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

The Connors-Smith match was a thriller right down to the wire with the exciteable crowd divided in its loyalties. After Connors, 21, had run through the first set without loss of a game, Smith supporters who had sat in disbelief shouted "Come on, Stan," while others in the crowd chanted "Come on, Chris," in reference to Connors' recent engagement to Chris Evert.

Each point was bitterly contested and none moreso in the final set when Smith was within a point of a 5-1 lead, having broken Connors in the fourth game. But Connors held service in the sixth game and then broke in the seventh. Smith had three further break points in the eighth game and forced Connors to save two match points in the 12th to send the match into the tie-breaker.

Smith led 4-1 in the tie-break but still he could not find a way through Connors' defense and finally his opponent put it away 8 points to 6 when Smith was wide with a forehand.

Mackie Returns For Open Meet

The Nebraska gymnastics team will compete Friday and Saturday in the Rocky Mountain Open at Aurora Central High School in suburban Denver.

The competition will open Friday afternoon with compulscries, continue Saturday morning with optionals and conclude Saturday night.

Junior all-around man Gene Mackie of Omaha, who missed the Midwest Open at Chicago last weekend because of a hairline fracture in his right leg, will be ready for this weekend's meet.

Majors Tabbed Coach Of Year

New Haven, Conn. (AP) — Johnny Majors, who turned the University of Pittsburgh football team into a winning unit in one year, has been chosen coach of the year by the Walter Camp Football Foundation.

Majors was selected for leading the Panthers to a 6-4-1 record one year after they finished 1-10, the worst in the university's history, foundation President Joseph W. Kelly said Tuesday night.

Majors plans to attend the Walter Camp award dinner Jan. 26, Kelly said. The foundation is named after Yale University's first football coach.

Gov. Hall Asks Big 8 To Lift Ban

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma plans to go to Kansas City Thursday and ask Big Eight Conference faculty representatives and athletic directors to lift the two-year television ban imposed on the University of Okahoma football team.

The Sooners were forbidden to accept a bowl invitation for the 1973 and 1974 seasons and barred from television for the 1974 and 1975 seasons because of recruiting violations.

Ed Hardy, Hall's press secretary, said the governor does not object to the Big Eight exercising its right to discipline its member institutions by barring them from postseason bowl games.

"But we do dispute the arbitrary right of the Big Eight to remove the team from television and from the view of the tax-paying citizens of this state," he said.

If the Big Eight refuses to reconsider its action, Hardy said the governor would consider filing a class action lawsuit on behalf of the citizens of Oklahoma.

Husker Swimmers At Home Saturday

Nebraska swimming coach John Reta puts his youngest team ever on display before the home folk for the first time Saturday morning when the Husker tankers host Northern Colorado at the Coliseum Pool.

The meet is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m., instead of the original 1 p.m., in order to allow the Greeley school to avoid Sunday driving during the present gas shortage.

Walker Sparks Kings To Win

Omaha Neb. (AP) — Jimmy Walker scored 29 points while playing the entire game as the Kansas City-Omaha Kings snapped an 11-game losing streak by defeating Atlanta 117-105 Wednesday night.

The Kings were without Nate Archibald, who was idled again when a season-long Achilles tendon injury flared up. Nate Williams, 6-5 forward, moved to the back court and collected 22 points for the Kings as did veteran forward Don Koiis.

Arizona St. Offense Tops Stats

NEW YORK (UPI) — Arizona State was the most explosive college football team in the nation this year.

The Sun Devils, coached by Frank Kush, won the total offense and scoring titles, according to the final NCAA statistics released Wednesday by the National Collegiate Sports Services.

Arizona State, which posted a 10-1 record and finished No. 10 in the final UPI ratings, averaged 565.5 yards and 44.6 points per game to win both crowns. Alabama, the national champion, gained 480.7 yards per game and finished second in total offense while UCLA was No. 2 in scoring with an average of 42.7 points per game.

UCLA captured the rushing title with an average of 400.3 yards per game and San Diego State, led by national passing champion Jesse Freitas, captured the passing title with an average of 305.0 yards per game.

Halftime: Central Tech 33, North Platte 28.

Indiana Strikes Kansas

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Third-ranked Indiana hit nine of its first 12 shots Wednesday night and rolled to a 72-59 college basketball victory over Kansas behind the career-high 22 points of junior Steve Green.

The Hoosiers dominated the contest in winning their second straight game of the season.

The final score was the closest Kansas came in the second half. Indiana built leads of 24 points midway through the half before Coach Bob Knight sent in his reserves.

Longview Tops Neb. Southern

Kansas City, Mo. (AP) — Nebraska Southern College of Fairbury fell to Longview Community College of Kansas City, Mo., 78-77 in overtime here Wednesday night after rallying from an 18-point first-half deficit.

Shofner To Coach Texas Christian

Fort Worth, Tex. (AP) — Jim Shofner, who participated in the Cotton Bowl twice during his playing career at Texas Christian, will try to return the Horned Frogs to bowl glory as the new head coach of his alma

Shofner, a 38-year-old assistant under Dick Nolan with the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League, was officially hired Wednesday. He is believed to have received a five-year contract for some $35,000 a year.

Royals' GM Elected League President

Houston (AP) — Bill Gorman, general manager of the Omaha Royals, was elected Wednesday to a one-year term as vice president of the American Association.

Gorman succeeds Jim Burris, general manager of the Denver Bears.

Blue-Gray Tilt Tabs 4 Sooners

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Four members of the undefeated Oklahoma Sooners will be playing defense for the North squad in the annual Blue-Gray football game here Dec. 18.

Oklahoma has been barred from bowl competition because of an NCAA ruling. But the Sooner's No. 1 safety, Durwood Keeton will be in the Blue secondary, along with teammates Kenneth Pope and Clyde Power. Dave Smith of the Sooners will be a Blue linebacker.

Michigan's Jim Coode and Mike Hoban will be in the Blue offensive line while Barry Dotzauer will do the kicking for the Blues.

Quarterbacking the Blue squad in the annual post-season game at Cramton Bowl will be Michael Boryla of Stanford and Jessie Freitas of San Diego State.

Linemen: Barry Price, Oklahoma State; Ron Rydalch, University of Utah; Mike Seifert, Wisconsin.

Linebacker: Cleveland Vann, Oklahoma State; John Phillips, Xavier.

Back: Randy Poltl, Stanford.

Yankee-Oakland Talks Unsuccessful

Houston (AP) — Oakland Owner Charles O. Finley met for two hours with American Legue President Joe Cronin and New Yankee President Gabe Paul Wednesday in an unsuccessful effort to settle the managerial problems centering around Dick Williams.

"As far as I'm concerned this is a closed issue and I don't care to discuss it any further," said Finley after the Yankees and A's had failed to agree on compensation which would let Williams out of the last two years of his contract.

Colorado Upsets Long Beach

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Scott Wedman hit a twisting layup with 12 seconds left and gave the Colorado Buffaloes a 73-71 upset triumph over nationally ranked Long Beach State in college basketball Wednesday night.

Colorado's season mark is now 2-1. Long Beach State is 1-1.

Scantlebury Makes 'Debut'

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Saturday night's Oakland-Craig at Ft. Calhoun basketball game may not generate much state-wide significance. Neither is expected to be a Class C powerhouse.

But the game is noteworthy. It marks the coaching debut of Ft. Calhoun's Tom Scantlebury, the ball-handling wizard who electrified Nebraska basketball fans for four years.

Scantlebury, who scored 969 points in his 3-year Cornhusker varsity career, coaches Ft. Calhoun the same way he played — fast.

"We hope to run a lot," he says. "We have five starters who can play guard. We'll have to scrap to rebound, but we think we can press.

"I'm pretty optimistic even though we return only two starters from a losing (7-10) season," adds Scantlebury. "I know Oakland-Craig qualified for the state Class C tournament last season, so we'll have our work cut out for us."

Scantlebury, who earned all-Big Eight acclaim his senior season at Nebraska, almost made it as a free agent with the NBA Milwaukee Bucks after his Cornhusker careers.

"I was like Al Nissen was this year with Kansas City-Omaha. I was about the last guy cut," relates Scantlebury.

The Oakland, Calif., native then spent two years, competing in the Continental Basketball Association (CBA), a semipro league with teams in Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan.

"I finished school at Nebraska and flew to Chicago on the weekends to play for Rockford (Ill.)," relates Scantlebury.

"After I graduated, I saw this job at Ft. Calhoun listed in the teacher's placement last spring," he adds. "I still have a real love for basketball and have always wanted to stay in it, so I applied and was accepted."

Scantlebury claims he couldn't be happier with his new setup as a history and social studies teacher and Class C basketball coach.

"Ft. Calhoun is only nine miles north of Omaha and growing rapidly," he points out. "They have excellent facilities — a 2-year-old school with a great gym. It won't take long for it to become Class B.

"I live in West Omaha, so I can still enjoy a big city," says Scantlebury, who admits the experience of coaching in a smaller community is decidedly different than his own playing experience at large Oakland Skyline High School.

"Everyone knows everyone here. For me, that's different, but I like it. It's better," says Scantlebury. "You know all the local yokels down the street. It's really informal."

The competition probably won't remind him of a Bill Cain, a Cliff Meely or a Dave Robisch. But it's competition. And Scantlebury hopes it will be equally intense.

In season-opening games involving Lincoln teams, here's a first crack at forecasting:

Lincoln Southeast v. Lincoln East, Friday night, Pershing Auditorium — The teams should be evenly matched. But the Spartans deserve an edge, based on more experienced guard play.

Lincoln High at Hastings, Friday night — The Tigers are favored only because they're at home.

Kearney v. Lincoln Northeast, Saturday night, East Gym — Kearney lost most of its firepower from last March's state semifinalist team. Northeast returns Terry Novak. And that's enough to make an easy choice.

Omaha Westside at Lincoln High, Saturday night — The Warriors return two starters and are blessed with a 6-7 Creighton Prep transfer from the 1973 state runnerup. They should coast.

Lincoln Pius X at Council Bluffs (Ia). St. Albert's, Saturday night — St. Albert's already will have played three games. But the 'Bolts are bracing for an excellent season.

Dealers Say Big Cars Selling Well

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Despite what one auto dealer called the "wind in Washington" blowing the gasoline crisis to Lincoln, the shutters reportedly aren't clamping tight on new car showrooms.

Of 13 auto dealers contacted Wednesday, only one said he is in real trouble owing to consumer reaction to the gasoline brouhaha. The others said people are continuing to buy new cars. Big new cars.

"We're so sick of reading . . . about the energy crisis," said Jerry Williamson, Randolph Oldsmobile sales manager. There is "so much written that's not true."

Williamson said Randolph Olds had a "record month" in November and sold more Toronadoes "than we have since we've been in the business."

'We're Understocked'

"We're understocked," said Richard E. Tierney, vice president of Broekemeier Ford Inc. in Seward. He said while many customers have been buying small and intermediate cars, others are "not afraid" to buy big ones. "As soon as the wind in Washington changes," he said, big car sales should increase even more.

If it comes to a choice of "gas versus creature comforts," Woody Wilson said he's found people would rather have a new car with the comforts "sit in their driveway" than a small car.

Wilson, sales manager for Kirk Motors Inc., reported that intermediates are not selling as well as big cars, and that his 1973 models "sold out very easily."

The governmental alarm "had a little adverse effect" on big car sales, said Gotfredson Chrysler-Plymouth sales manager Bob W. Stratman. He added, "I don't think it's going to have the real impact a lot of people think it is."

Stratman said his big car sales are "the same as they were a year ago."

'Haven't Felt Impact'

"We're in a rural area. We really haven't felt the impact yet," said Garwood L. Anderson, owner of Anderson Auto Co. in Wahoo. "We still sold some big cars this month."

"Depending on what Washington does" about fuel shortage measures, it "could have a terrible impact on us, or they could help us," Anderson said. "We're trying not to overreact."

"Our sales on big cars have been normal or maybe even a little higher than normal," said Ronald D. Grebe, partner in Ficken & Grebe Ford Sales of Ashland.

Grebe said he believes city people are more concerned than farmers about big cars polluting. "I don't think a farmer wants a small car," he said, noting it "doesn't fit his needs."

William T. Petty, Vanice Pontiac-Cadillac Inc. sales manager, said, "We're up about 20% for the year. Cadillac is the best it's ever been." He attributed much of the sales to repeat customers.

Asked about November and December activity, Petty said big car sales boomed even after President Nixon made his energy announcements.

'Slowed Down'

Albert E. McNamara, owner of Mac's Chev-Olds in Crete, allowed that his big car sales have "slowed down some" but are selling as well as last year.

McNamara said his customers aren't trading their big cars for small ones; instead, they're getting newer model big cars or buying additional small ones. People are too used to "luxury, comfort, air conditioning, the ride," he said, predicting record sales in 1974.

Fred R. Ahlschwede, owner of Ahlschwede Ford Sales & Service in Crete said his recent big car sales have been "none, period. Of anything."

"I've got about 30 of 'em sitting around," Ahlschwede said, noting his business slump coincided with the publicizing of the energy crisis. Car buyers are "looking for small stuff," he said.

"It's quite concerning," Ahlschwede said. "We don't think we can get rid of them (big cars)," and the unavailability of trucks "has about broken us in half." But he added, "We'll sit it out."

'Really Down'

In October, Jim Dean said, big car sales were "really down" at Dean Bros. Lincoln-Mercury Inc. in Lincoln. But the general manager said in November big- and small-car sales went 50-50.

"New cars are picking up now," Dean said, "after people found out they weren't rationing gas."

Earl Moses, sales manager of Meginnis Ford in Lincoln said his big car sales are "just about the same as they have been."

Les Swanson of Swanson's Ford in Ceresco and Henry Misle of Misle Chevrolet in Lincoln both reported normal big car sales.

Except Ahlschwede, the dealers said they anticipated no overstocked inventories at year-end. Some admitted their inventories were somewhat heavier than normal for December, but said discounts should move them off their lots.

Swanson said his sales have been so good that "I haven't even got mine yet." He summed up many of the dealers' reports of customer comments: "I don't want to ride around in a small car."

Yet every one of the dealers reported they are selling all the small cars they can get and would be able to sell even more if they were available from the manufacturers.

Superintendent Opposes Discontinuation Of Office

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County Superintendent of Schools Glenn Turner told high school students who served as county school superintendents Wednesday in the annual Cornhusker Boys' and Girls' County Government Participation Day that he is opposed to discontinuing the office of county superintendent as it is proposed under provisions of LB 402 passed by the last session of the Legislature.

Noting that he will be retiring at the end of this term and that it would not directly affect him, Dr. Turner told the youth that it is his opinion that the office as well as the educational service units should be replaced with sufficient intermediate units to assume the combined duties and services of both.

Dr. Turner said that although he had not been contacted by the Lancaster County commissioners, they have published notice of a public hearing Dec. 11 for the purpose of hearing the public's views on continuance of the office.

Under provisions of LB 402, the county board must make a decision on discontinuing the office not later than 12 months before the expiration of the incumbent's term, which in the case of Lancaster County, makes it mandatory for the board to make such a decision yet this month.

"My considered opinion is that the County Commissioners would like to have this office space," Dr. Turner said.

He said that many newspaper stories concerning the space problem in the County-City Building have quoted various individuals as stating that the county superintendent's office is to be discontinued and that space could be used to ease the space problems of the County Attorney's office and the County Court between which the county superintendent's office is located.

He said he had been told that one county commissioner has stated that his office works only with Class I schools which he contended was not true.

Turner explained that the bill provides that the county board, after holding a public hearing, may contract with the school districts to perform the duties of the office as long as the annual cost to the county of any such contract does not exceed the proceeds of a tax of one-tenth of a mill on the dollar on the assessed valuation of all taxable property.

He said that he sees a problem with delegating the responsibilities to school districts in that the districts would be approving their own teacher certifications which are now registered with the county superintendents.

Dr. Turner and other county officials explained to the nearly 200 participants in the County Government Day the duties of their respective offices.

The day is co-sponsored by the county and the American Legion.

Only 2 Babies Given Up, Birthright Of Lincoln Says

In its second year of operation Birthright of Lincoln, Inc., reported that two mothers relinquished their babies for adoption, while 12 kept their offspring.

In 1972 only four babies were kept by their unwed mothers, while eight were given up for adoption.

A telephone counseling service for unwed mothers and married women with unwanted pregnancies who are seeking an alternative to abortion, Birthright has recently compiled statistics comparing 1972 activity with that of the first 10 months of 1973.

So far this year 415 calls have been handled by the group's 43 volunteers who man the phones around-the-clock. In 1972 the calls numbered 398 and the volunteers were only 27 strong.

About 63% of the callers fall in the 18-22 age group, while 27% are between 13 and 17 years old.

A new service, counseling for unwed fathers, was offered to 12 young men this year.

Mary Alice Pratt, president of the pro-life group, feels there is a real need for helping the unwed father.

"I've been really surprised about the responsible attitude of so many boys," related Mrs. Pratt.

Other services rendered by the non-profit, non-denominational organization this year include referring 27 women to doctors and paying for 11 pregnancy tests.

In addition, more than one contact was made with 15 women, but the results are unknown.

This is the frustrating part, said Mrs. Pratt. "You just don't know what happens to these kids."

GOP Chairman Barrett Opposes Gas Tax Hike

By The Associated Press

State Republican Chairman Bill Barrett of Lexington said Wednesday that he was opposed to a proposed increase in the gasoline tax and he blamed the Exon administration for the rising cost of highway construction.

He said Highway Commission member David Breslow of Lincoln "will apparently push for a two-cent hike in the state gasoline tax at a time when taxpayers can barely afford existing prices."

Barrett said that in the fiscal year 1970, Republican Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann built 896.3 miles of road with $78.8 million dollars. He said Gov. J. James Exon built only 422.2 miles of road in fiscal 1973 with $80.2 million.

"I do not see how the Highway Commission can expect the taxpayers or the Legislature to support a gas tax hike when the current Democrat administration apparently prefers to cut back on needed highway construction even with added fuel tax income," Barrett said.

Issue Of Partisan Legislature Should Be On Ballot, Harris Says

By The Associated Press

Bill Harris, McCook and Lincoln businessman who has indicated an interest in seeking the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor next year, says he believes the issue of a partisan Legislature should be submitted to Nebraska voters.

Harris said he himself opposes the change to partisanship and would lead an opposition to the proposal, but said the time has come "to see whether the people want a partisan or non-partisan body."

A bill which would have placed the issue on the ballot next year fell one vote short of the 30 needed for approval in the 1973 Legislature. The sponsor, Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney, head of Nebraska Young Republicans, has said he will try again next year to get the bill through

Waldron May Test Martin

State Sen. James Waldron of Callaway Wednesday announced that he is considering challenging Rep. Dave Martin for Nebraska's Third District congressional seat.

Waldron, a Republican, said he was prompted to run by rumors that Martin will not seek re-election for health reasons, and by the fact that "Mr. Martin has been less and less effective in representing" the interests of the sprawling Third District.

"I believe that Republicans in the Third District are looking for a new approach to solving their problems at the federal level and that the people will support a younger and more aggressive candidate because they want stronger leadership at the federal level."

He continued, "I believe that maintaining a Republican in the Congress for the Third District is imperative . . . at present I share the views of many Republicans in believing that our present representative will have difficulty in being re-elected."

Waldron, a 36-year-old attorney, has served in the Legislature since 1966. His term expires in 1974, and he is regarded as facing a rough road to re-election since his district's boundary lines were changed in 1971 to include North Platte. Mrs. Lorraine Orr of North Platte is expected to run for Waldron's Legislative seat.

During his tenure in he Legislature, Waldron sponsored no-fault insurance and consumer protection legislation.

Ziebarth Criticizes D. Martin

Wilcox, Neb. (UPI) — Former State Sen. Wayne Ziebarth Wednesday accused Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., of "dragging his feet" on informing Nebraskans about the energy crisis.

Ziebarth, who has announced he will be a candidate on the Democratic ticket for Martin's Third Congressional District seat, said Martin is one of a "handful of men with whom President Nixon meets regularly as a part of the Republican House leadership.

"If, as Martin says, the President foresaw the current fuel shortage and attempted to warn Congress, he must have discussed it in conversations at which Martin was present, yet the congressman has taken no action regarding the energy crisis."

Ziebarth said he believes the energy problem has been building for several years but that "our national leadership failed to level with the American people at a time when early action was crucial."

Yesterday's Answer 12-6

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 12-6
